Commentaries

By Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi

Between Two Eternities

On Rosh Hashonah the eternity of the past and the eternity of the future converge. With regard to the past and the future, a thinker of the long ago spoke thus:

"Look to this day!
For yesterday is only a dream
And tomorrow is a vision."

The biblical Psalmist in one of the most memorable of utterances (Ps. 116) echoes the very emphasis on the present, in these meaningful words: "I shall walk before the Lord in the land of the living". Who can deny that the living present is most vital? All of us who do any thinking must agree with poet and thinker. However, the Psalmist, though in love with life of the present, is very conscious of yesterday and has a deep appreciation for the past.

Who can say that the past is but a dream? The great admonition in Holy Scripture is that we are to remember the past, for in recalling past achievements we find inspiration in present living. Indeed, the past is not a dream, but very much of a reality and its import is today emphasized by the teaching of psychology. In our personal lives we are what we are in the present because of what has gone in the making of our past.

The Psalmist, loyal to the living present, turns to memories of the past that he may better enjoy confident living in the present. Therefore, on this Rosh Hashonah as one year ends and another begins, let us see what it is that this poet, King David, unto whom is ascribed the authorship of the psalms, chose to remember. His recollections will no doubt help us in attaining confident living.

Above all else, the Psalmist recalls that God has spared him unto life in these words, "Thou hast delivered my soul from death." Is not the entire tradition of Rosh Hashonah bound up with the hold on life? The very essence of our ritual is prayer for life. Our sages have pointed out that on the New Year two books lie open, that of life and that of death, and thus fervently we all do pray, that we may be found worthy to be inscribed in the book of life.

We are living in an age when life is so much threatened! Ours is a dangerous civilization. The speed of the machine in the air, on the sea and on the highway, has more than increased the possibilities of the destruction of life. Those of us who unfortunately found ourselves shipwrecked off the shores of Quebec, on July 12 and went through the harrowing ordeal of being rescued during the darkness of the night, with life belts tied about us, will on this holy day especially wish to proclaim prayerfully the hallowed words of the Psalmist: "Ki Chilasto Nafshi Mimoves".

Some there may be whose life has been threatened during the past year by mysterious sickness, but they have been able to resist the attack on their citadel of life. Surely, these have every reason to thank God that life has not been quenched. In the best tradition of our Judaism, we are to enter our holy places on Rosh Hashonah and sincerely thank God for life, and this spirit of gratitude should encourage us to face the future because of the benefits which we have derived from the past.

Then, too, the Psalmist recalls and is grateful to God for "Thou hast saved my life from tears." What human is there that does not experience sorrow and disappointment? Life is ever made up of laughter and tears, of joy and pain, and we see that King David, as we study his own life, knew much joy and much sorrow. While on the throne he encountered rebellion against him. In the midst of his rule he had to mourn for his beloved son, Absalom. How then could he have said, "Thou hast saved from tears?" What he means to convey is that despite the darkness which tears have brought, yet he was granted the power by God to rise above the sorrows of life and to emerge from the valley of tears unto the heights of sunlight.

On this holy occasion, as we usher in a New Year, it is but normal that we think of those who worshipped with us last Rosh Hashonah and now are no longer in our midst. It is natural that tears should stream down our cheeks in this hour of communion; that we long to hear voices that can no longer be heard; and that we seek to touch the vanished hand of a friend that is gone, but we must remember in the spirit of the immortal psalmist that it is our religious duty to learn to rise above our sorrows and to be strengthened by the memory of consolation. Tears too, have their blessings, for these keep the human heart from breaking when burdened by bereavement. On this day we thank God that He has implanted within us the ability to find strength amidst the heaviest of life's sorrows that come at one time or another during our earthly pilgrimage. With the past, we can truthfully say:

"Father, to Thee we look in all our sorrow;
Thou art the fountain whence our healing flows;
Dark though the night, joy cometh with the morrow;
Safely they rest who in Thy love repose."

Not only is the Psalmist grateful for having been spared unto life, not only is he grateful for having been saved from perpetual tears, but now he is also grateful: "For Thou hast saved my feet from stumbling." No doubt many were the temptations that made war upon him and he succeeded to overcome them. Our sages have truly taught that the human heart is a battle ground where the evil inclination and the good inclination are constantly in combat.

Modern psychology supports this Rabbinic teaching. Modern psychology has in recent years revealed to us the many evil impulses which cause humans to stumble. On this day all of us, for there is no one perfect, can well express gratitude for the times during the past we have managed to escape selfishness, falsehood, and pettiness. The function of religion is not to impose upon us only thoughts of our weaknesses. Indeed, a truly great function of religion is to cause us to remember our virtues, that in turn we may be strengthened morally.

If we could only see more of the virtues of other people, rather than to seek out their failings, how easier it would be to realize brotherhood and world unity. Alas, the fuse to world destruction is already lighted, because East and West stress the evil they behold in each other, and because of this another world conflagration is in the making. Well may we pray even now, though it is almost too late, that a prophet may arise among statesmen and smother the flame, and save humanity from annihilation.

A change of systems, political and economic, will not in itself make for a decent society. These changes can only have fruitful meaning if the hearts of men are purified and freed from

If ever Rosh Hashonah, the Day of Judgment, had something to say to the world it is in this year of the atomic age. In the Jewish concept the New Year is the occasion when all the individuals and nations of the earth pass in review before the Lord of the universe for an appraisal of their deeds. The significance of this day drives too deep into the conscience of man to allow the existence of barriers between creeds and nations. No exclusionism is practiced by the Jews on the Day of Blowing the Alarm. They do not possess this day for themselves. The false partitions that divide the human family, and upon which many segments have often been impaled, are set aside. What remains is man, any man and every man, and his conscience under a searching light.

Never before has man been so little and at the same time so big. He is fantastically big through the advent of atomic power and his ability to decide how to use it, whether for good or for bad. He is little through the pitiable deficiency in his sense of responsibility towards its use and its frightful potentialities for nightmarish consequences. Man may be big in power because he holds a devilish device that can even change the contour and character of humanity, but he is small because he has used it as a weapon of war on the spurious claim that the end justifies the means, and because he is already urging its use again. Man is little under the weight of guilt that troubles his mind and heart, and he shows anxiety and fear over his sin.

In Jewish teaching it was forbidden to cut down fruit-bearing trees for making weapons of war when besieging a city. To destroy the trees would have been to transgress the limits recognized as moral by those who justify war as a necessity. Those limits were fixed with victory as the aim but no moral limits can be fixed with complete destruction of a human enemy as the aim. Immorality is too weak a word to apply to the use of a weapon of desolation that has not been tested yet in its end results of horror upon humanity.

Rosh Hashonah, the Jewish New Year, being the day of review, is also the day of revival and return to higher resolve for the future than was borne out by the year just past. In many synagogues the Bible reading is from the tenth chapter of Deuteronomy: "And now, Israel, what doth the Lord thy God require of thee?" This is a simple question in keeping with the spirit of the holy day. It is ancient, historic, and so is the answer contained in the next few lines. What is required is that the commandments will be kept with reverence for the Lord and all the members of the family of nations. Together with reverence for life goes a sense of responsibility and a feeling of brotherhood between all humans. Without it people are barbarian.

Mankind must fall back on this simple prescription. Without reverence for creation and for life and the living there can be no salvation for a humanity now in extreme peril from insane forces on the side of waste as opposed to those who would conserve life and foster the living. In their opinions, their beliefs, and their expressed views the Jews must hold on for dear life to their ancient ideals which emphasize the vital principle of human brotherhood and recognize the individual as the most precious unit in the world.

The terrible blood-letting of world war, and this present extended phase of that war, to say nothing of the threats encased in atomic weapons, dwarf the individual personality and mock its right to reverent protection against all the social insecurities. It is time now to go back to the biblical ideals, to close up the gap beween lip service to what is right and spiritually sound and what is actual devotion to it. It is time to try to recapture the universalistic vision of the Jews of a just order of life for all peoples and put it into practice as the only way to peace and happiness.

It is the Jewish duty to keep in sight the teachings that are at the root of civilization and to work toward their inclusion in the daily life of all humans "even though all the peoples walk every one in the name of his god", as the Prophet Micah said. It is in the Jewish spirit to expect the ultimate realisation of dreams long held dear. All are secondary to the dream of mankind as a brotherhood.

Micah said: "But in the last days . . . many nations shall come and say: Come, let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he shall teach us His ways, and we will walk in His paths." Those ways and paths concern the individual personality and the development of its stature toward the highest. They contain the impetus for the Jewish struggle against the evils that keep men small and make life barren. Commitment to that struggle is what is required in the new year and every year until the causes of conflict are removed through mutual responsibility between men for the welfare of all creation.

PUBLIC RELATIONS IN THEORY AND IN PRACTICE

BY EFRAIM M. ROSENZWEIG, OF MONTREAL, DIRECTOR OF THE NATIONAL JOINT PUBLIC RELATIONS COMMITTEE OF THE CANADIAN JEWISH CONGRESS AND BNAI BRITH

Part One

Jewish Public Relations originated in the United States as a defence activity. The very name, "Anti-Defamation League", pioneer in the field of Jewish Public Relations, clearly indicates the concept involved; namely the protection of the Jewish community against false report and hostile propaganda. It is not to be doubted that many Jews still believe countering of anti-Semitic literature and defamation to be the primary work of Public Relations.

But the passing of the years, with the often disappointing burden of trial and error, has taught us many an important lesson about the problems of Jewish survival and the maintenance of civil and human rights. These lessons have had a very deep-seated effect upon programs of Public Relations both in the United States and Canada, and can be given this simplified summary:

(1) Anti-Semitism is less a Jewish problem than it is a total community problem. By this we mean that anti-Jewish manifestations are rooted in social problems which must ultimately affect the entire community. However; though Jews readily, and of necessity, rise to the challenge of anti-Semitism, nevertheless, we deem it our duty to rally all constructive pro-democratic organizations to the attack against the enemy, who is, in reality, the common foe. It is the principle of a United Nations—there must be a united front against the kind of aggression which can destroy all our best values.

(2) By the same token, discrimination and similar hostile action against any racial, religious or ethnic group, constitutes a menace to the entire social structure, and therefore calls for action, in which we, as a Jewish community, shall do our part. The sum of it is that our fate is bound up in the social equilibrium of the world in which we live, and the extent to which civil rights and human rights are weakened or strengthened, is precisely the extent to which we and our fellow citizens shall live in danger or in peace. It seems a very simple lesson, does it not, but we are still put to it to prove that the whole body can die from the infection in one hand.

(3) For a long time, we Jews, who have often held an almost fatal faith in the power of words, have looked to literature, books, pamphlets, advertisements, and all the paraphernalia of intellectual persuasion, to educate men of ill-will out of their deeply rooted prejudices. "Tell them the facts", we said, "and they will become our friends. They sin through ignorance. Jews are not really the greedy, conniving, boorish, creatures they say we are. These are myths which they will be glad to discard when confronted by the truth".

Vast sums of money were expended on various "education" ventures, without any proof that their objectives had been achieved. Yet, those same years of trial and error taught us that "education", carefully conceived, had its place as a supporting weapon in our attack against the ramparts of discrimination and prejudice. Jewish Public Relations agencies came to realize that it was indeed a long, long task to alter a man's thinking, and that it was almost impossible to reason out of man's mind that which was rooted in the emotions by fear, jealousy, and general insecurity.

It was actually easier to keep people from translating prejudice into discrimination. Prejudices may not damage anyone but the person who entertains them; it is only when the prejudiced mind walks over the bridge of action, and puts the prejudice into effect, that the real danger ensues. Employment discrimination, resort discrimination, education discrimination, restrictive covenants, discrimination in public services—these are the translations of prejudice. By using law, where such law exists, by attempting to legislate such law into existence where it does not exist, the best and most effective work of Public Relations is to be done.

In a war—and the campaign against all aspects of hatred and prejudice is war—a brave show of loud noise is not enough. This kind of war is for keeps. The stakes are too great; our job is to attack at the most vulnerable point, and these are in the field of law and social action.

The field of education is certainly not to be neglected, but in a day when time is fast running out, we cannot afford to misjudge the value and validity of our goals, or the strength of the resistance to our reaching them.

Part Two

Now, how does the National Joint Public Relations Committee operate within this framework of theory?

Holding to the doctrine that our prime objective is at one blow to deprive men of ill-will "of their weapons" and to strengthen the democratic fabric of our country, the Committee has taken an active and leading role in the fight against restrictive covenants, discriminatory employment practices, as well as for the promulgation of anti-discrimination clauses in the licensing of business establishments. In addition, we have submitted to the special Senate Committee on human rights and fundamental freedoms, those arguments which we feel are most likely to secure for all Canadians a greater measure of domestic tranquility. These are a small but important part of our efforts in the field of law and social action.

While we are ready to stand alone if need be, we encourage and receive the closest cooperation of like-minded groups. Similarly, we are prepared to cooperate in actions which they have initiated. Such groups include religious, labour, and ethnic organizations. Whether action is to be independent or in concert with theirs, is

The High Holy Days: Their Practice And Their Significance

BY RABBI MENDELL LEWITTES, YOUNG ISRAEL OF MONTREAL

Of all the holidays in the Jewish calendar, none is so widely observed and generally honored as the High Holy Days. Synagogues which are but half or quarter-filled on the Sabbath or on the three Pilgrimage Festivals are thronged with worshippers on Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur. The traditional chanting by cantor and choir on these Days of Awe and Judgment is impressive and appealing to the deeper religious sentiments even for the Jew who throughout the year experiences little or no spiritual emotion.

This is no mere coincidence. For these High Holy Days bear a message which strikes at the very root of human existence. They speak of basic principles and address themselves to every human being who is capable of reflecting upon the meaning and purpose of his life. These days are primarily designed to stir within each individual a fundamental probing of his conduct; they create a mood of introspection and self-examination.

Too often is man swept along in the current of daily events, harassed by the trivia of life and absorbed in the constant struggle for economic security and the pursuit of pleasure. We are creatures of the moment, unheedful of the lessons of the past or the forebodings of the future. We fail to view our lives in the long-range perspective of our history and our destiny. Furthermore, in our modern day and age, with its mass production and stereotyped living, the individual often loses consciousness of his own importance and his personal responsibility in guiding and directing the course of his life. In the complexities of modern civilization man feels like a piece of flotsam helplessly tossed about in the sea of life.

The Torah, in decreeing the observance of Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur, is calling upon the individual, first of all, to pause from his daily routine and to reflect upon the basic aspects of his existence. It bids him to focus his gaze upon the true goal of human existence; to redirect his steps to the paths of righteousness and to formulate more clearly his philosophy of life. Consequently, it makes man aware of his private and inner self, as distinguished from the mass of men. It emphasizes the importance of the individual in determining for himself his conduct and his mode of living.

The philosophy of life which the High Holy Days commend to the Jew is based upon the fundamental premise that human life is sacred, having been divinely created and blessed. Our thoughts on Rosh Hashanah, as stirred by the liturgy, go back to the days of the Creation, when man was fashioned in the image of God. The leit motif of our prayers is Life. Our oft-repeated supplication is: Remember us for Life. In the midst of a world which oft shows a contempt for life, when wars and persecutions take a grim toll of human life reaching into the millions, we Jews reaffirm our faith in the sanctity of human life. But the sanctity of life derives from man's moral responsibility; the human partakes of the divine in his freedom of will to determine the moral course of his life, to choose the good and to reject the evil.

Man's morality finds its major expression in his relations with his fellow man. The individual is important, not insofar as he serves himself and satisfies his private needs, but in the measure in which he serves his brother and neighbor. Remember us for Life, and Inscribe us in the Book of Life. Life is a book, a huge volume comprised of myriads of letters. Each letter is significant if it helps in the formation of a word, each word if it builds a sentence, each sentence a paragraph, each paragraph, a book.

One man is a letter in this book of Life. By righteous living he helps constitute a better family, his family makes for a better nation, his nation for a better world. Herein the High Holy Days give us the goal of human existence: Building a better world, a finer society. Thus our liturgy speaks of all peoples forming one fraternity of men doing the will of God with a perfect heart. It reiterates our hope for the redemption of all mankind by [illegible] aside the idolatry of unrighteousness and joining in the vast symphony of praise to the One God of Truth and Justice.

The shofar sounded on Rosh Hashanah is the herald of the Messiah, the end of man's striving. It echoes of the great day when the scattered of Israel will return to the Land of their Fathers and restore the ancient glory of Jerusalem, when the prophetic promise of Zion redeemed will become a reality to a long-suffering and patient people. We in our day are privileged to have come a step closer to the realisation of this ideal. The sounding of the shofar beckons us to continue to strive for its full consummation. For we seek not only the reestablishment of a Jewish State, and not only the resettlement of every Jew in a homeland which provides freedom and security. We seek the banishment of evil and the enthronement of justice. We seek peace for all men and security for all nations. The melody of our liturgy is Palestinian, but the overtones are universal.

An outstanding feature of the Jewish religion is the embodiment of its religious ideals in the performance of religious acts, known as Mitzvoth or Commandments. Ideals, when unrelated to man's daily life through a particular ceremony or religious symbol, tend to become ethereal generalisation which have but slight influence over man's conduct. The observance of a religious rite, on the other hand, serves as a constant reminder of the religious principle which it represents.

The Mitzvah ordained by the Torah to call to mind the religious ideals emphasised in the Rosh Hashanah ritual is the blowing of the shofar. If, during the year, man forgets about basic principles and the purposes of life, the notes of the ram's horn stir him into the moral reflection necessary for moral regeneration. Maimonides has expressed this thought in the following trenchant phrases: "Though the blowing of the Shofar is a Mitzvah, it conveys the following message, 'Awake, ye sleepers, and ponder your deeds . . . Be not of those who miss reality in their hunt after shadows and waste

THE HARD LESSON TO LEARN

BY RABBI N. N. SHAPIRO, GOEL TZEDEC SYNAGOGUE, TORONTO, ONTARIO

Once again the god of war, Mars, is flexing his muscles, and shaking the dream-like lethargy from his limbs. He is stirring like the center of the mighty volcano Mauna Loa, and the threat of complete warfare has entered the heart of the layman. The lesson must be relearned. In ten years a new generation has grown up. They, too, must wrestle with the ever present problems that have beset every generation before them for the past hundreds of years. They have not yet learned the disastrous effects that we who have lived through previous wars, have experienced.

Inside the mechanized factory, the mechanical brains are humming with activity. Wheels are turning, and materials are being converted into instruments of destruction. Forgotten are the warnings of the men of science who said that the war after this one would be fought with the most primitive of weapons, the stone and the cudgel. The very atmosphere has been harnessed to prepare men for this next encounter. It has become a criminal offense to mouth the secret of the atomic bomb, the hydrogen bomb, the refined bullet, projectile, jet propelled airplane, and the poison gas. Vast stores of numbers, formulae, and scientific combinations are being pressed into service for what promises to be an all out and permanent solution to manmade problems.

The brass trumpet sounds the call to the reserves, and uniforms that haven't even had the chance to become moth-eaten or too small, are making their appearance in the wardrobe of what the well-dressed man of 1950 will wear. Was George Orwell blessed with the mind of a seer? Is he the only one who knows the answers? Is there one in the making a "Little Brother"? Did his novel cause us to smile tolerantly and marvel at the clever and amusing way that an author had of putting his ideas on paper? Will there really be a Mr. Adam? These things have lost their humor. Is 1984 the real year of destruction, or will it come even sooner?

The newsmen have taken human interest pictures of the officers and men who have already been called. And from Korea comes the most fearsome news. Past and beyond the voice of the radio commentator, "The Next Voice You Hear . . ." Is man to be shown a true Judgment Day? No one knows the answers to these throbbing questions. It seems that we have never known. We fail all the examinations. Universities and high school still graduate the young men of the future, and still they are not prepared with preventatives. So we face, and are in the very beginnings, of the new and perhaps the last war. Where does the fault lie?

Once again we are going to experience the religious slump that precedes a war. The talk goes on at Lake Success, the statesmen are gathered around the baize tables and everyone has something to say. But no one has thought to speak of God. Einstein has stated that "Science without religion is lame, and religion without science is blind." This may be the answer. This may be the key, the clue, the solution to the puzzle of living. The combination of religion and science. So why do not the scientists and statesmen find time to talk to God? During the High Holy Day season we must again enter the synagogue with a familiar fear in our hearts. It is time for us to talk with God. We are the people who will be most affected when total warfare once more engulfs us. Why can't the warring nations realize that there is no place to hide either from atomic warfare, and what is more important, from God?

Will there remain as many of the people as God allowed after the Great Flood? It would appear that God is getting a little tired of repeated warnings, and He may give it all up as a bad job. How can it be possible for man to be created in God's image? We are put upon this earth for a purpose, and we can find meaning in life only through devoting ourselves to society, but we are also endowed with the seeds of our own destruction. God may have overestimated us when he allowed us to think.

In the past few years we have been the witness to many miracles. The tangible proof of God's strength. Are we still going to be the righteous? Will we deserve our new possessions? Through a crucible of blood and tears and fire did we emerge with God on our side. Israel was returned to the rightful owners, and are we to lose our miracle through the blindness of super-statesmen and

WORLD BROTHERHOOD

BY RICHARD D. JONES, OF TORONTO, DIRECTOR OF THE CANADIAN COUNCIL OF CHRISTIANS AND JEWS

Those interested in group relations will be pleased to learn of the formation of "World Brotherhood", an international organization that has as its purpose the promotion of justice, friendship, understanding and cooperation among people varying as to religion, race, nation, or culture. Its members, believing in a spiritual interpretation of the universe and deriving their inspiration therefrom, constituted this organization as a voluntary association of individuals, not of official representatives of their organizations. This organization does not aim at any sort of amalgamation of bodies or at modifying any of the distinctive beliefs of its members.

One hundred and fifty people representing about fifteen countries met at the Unesco House, Paris, France, from June 8 to June 11, 1950, to consider the advisability of setting up such an organization and at the close of their discussions voting unanimously to do so. There were those in the United States and Canada who had been thinking about such an organization for some time. Early in March a planning conference of interested people from Canada and its neighbour to the south was held in Toronto.

Dr. Sidney Smith, President of the University of Toronto; Lady Eaton, Mr. John Hayes, President of Laura Secord Candy Shops Ltd.; Mr. E. L. Dubois, of Hamilton Motor Products; Mrs. Gordon Conant, Mr. William Sheady, Publicity Director of the Ontario Provincial Council, Knights of Columbus; and Mrs. Helen Tucker took an active part in this planning conference. Mr. Samuel Bronfman, Mr. John Hayes, and Lady Eaton were selected to serve on the advisory council for the Paris Conference that was to be held in June. Representing the United States at the Toronto planning conference were Mr. Allen W. Dulles, Mr. Basil O'Connor, Mr. Howard Wilson, Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, Mr. John McKibbin, Mr. John Sullivan and otthers.

European leaders were also contacted by interested people. Councils of Christians and Jews in the British Isles, Germany, France and Switzerland aided in enlisting the support of business men, educators, and clergymen in their own countries.

The general chairman for the Paris Conference was Arthur Compton, Nobel Prize Winner and Chancellor of Washington University, St. Louis. Chairman Compton in his opening remarks stated: "Ladies and Gentlemen: We have assembled to form a world organization for brotherhood. By fostering friendliness and understanding among those who consider men as brothers under the fatherhood of God we would remove the barriers and open the channels for cooperation. Thus we would make more effective our efforts to enroll all men everywhere to live worthy lives."

Supporting the thoughts of Dr. Compton were such world leaders as Paul Henri Spaak, of Belgium; Sir Stanford Cooper, of England; Mr. Albert Pksman, of Holland; Mr. Spytos Skouras, Mr. Henry Luce, Mr. Roger Straus, Mr. John Knight, Mr. Thomas Braniff, Mr. Richard De Rochemont, Mr. Ralph Nicholson, of the United States; Prof. Charles Hendry, Mr. Z. S. Phimister, Mr. Blair Laing, of Canada; Guill Konsbruck, of Belgium; Hon. Senator James Douglas, of Eire; Jean Ducros, Emanuel Monick, of France; Frau Annedore Lever and Ferdinand Friedensburg, of Germany. Mr. James Duncan, Mr. E. L. Dubois, Mr. John Hayes, Mr. Ben Sadowski, and Mr. Mark Levy made it possible for certain of the Canadian delegates to attend.

As soon as the formation of "World Brotherhood" was accomplished steps were taken to establish commissions to carry out its purposes. Two such commissions have already been formed and are at work, the educational commission under the leadership of Prof. Charles Hendry, of Canada, and the religious commission under the direction of Dr. Albert P. Shirkey.

The need for the World Brotherhood organization is apparent. In every country prejudice, intolerance, bigotry still exist. It was my privilege to visit, after the Paris Conference, several European countries. As prejudice exists in the United States and Canada so it exists in Europe.

Hitler has been dead for several years, but his false teachings still survive. It is true that Jewish cemeteries, two hundred of them, have been molested in Western Germany, but it is also true that Christian Churches have assumed the responsiblity of caring for many of these cemeteries. While one who travels in Germany meets those who still cling to the Aryan myth, he also meets those among the Germans who are tremendously concerned that the necessary education and action be taken to eradicate these Hitlerite teachings from the entire nation.

German leaders are speaking out against the Nazi teachings. I quote several such Germans: Theodor Heuss, President of the West German Republic: "Incidents which have unfortunately occurred

From Juvenile Immigrant To Canadian Citizen

A Paper Presented At The Canadian Conference On Social Work, In Vancouver, B.C., June, 1950

BY DORA WILENSKY, DIRECTOR, JEWISH FAMILY AND CHILD SERVICE OF TORONTO

Present immigration into Canada stems in part from the moral obligation' which Canadians feel towards European Displaced Persons, many of whom existed for years under inhuman conditions. Because of unsettled world conditions, and because of the fear of another world war, Europeans will continue to look towards Canada as a land of refuge; consequently, planning for continued immigration and for the integration of large numbers of people into Canada may be of a long-range character and will necessarily involve our social agencies.

During the four nights and three days which I spent traversing the country from Toronto to Vancouver, I was awed — as I never cease to be — by this land's expansiveness, by the colourful and glorious character of its broad plains and majestic mountains, by the potential that is in it for living richly in freedom and in peace. Surely, out of its magnificent resources, far greater numbers of people than our present population can build for themselves secure and satisfying lives, people, who in turn, will further enrich Canada's resources.

Inherent in the immigrant situation are two factors to which I shall refer. One is the problem which the individual immigrant faces in having to make a radical change in his way of living, having to learn a new language, strange customs, foreign laws, different values, of having to relate differently to a job, to bringing up his children; while at the same time he must retain his own individuality, his own culture, his pride in that which he brought to this new country. The other factor is the need of the community to find ways of helping the immigrant learn to use what is new, so that he may as rapidly as possible feel himself to be a part of the community, for it will fare better or worse according to whether and how the newcomer becomes a comfortable member of it.

Government departments, Boards of Education, public agencies, volunteer organizations, Welfare Councils, and other social agencies are all recognizing a responsibility for the extension of their services, and for the provision of new services specifically designed for the newcomers in order to facilitate their settlement and integration into a new economic, social and cultural life.

Most deeply and personally concerned with immigration are of course, the Jewish people: the Canadian Jewish Congress (a national organization whose several functions include the promotion of immigration) has stimulated many immigration schemes. Amongst these was one which, through Order-in-Council of May 1947, provided for the admission into Canada of 1,000 Jewish children. These were full orphans, scattered at that time throughout the Displaced Persons camps of the devastated countries of Europe. In making this provision, the Government stipulated that the children were to be placed in the care of recognized child care agencies. The Canadian Jewish Congress assumed complete responsibility for financing the project through these agencies, guaranteeing at the same time that these children would not become public charges.

The Canadian Jewish Congress was the final arbiter of broad policy questions related to this scheme, and stimulated the development and coordination of supporting services in the cities to which the children were sent. These consisted of informal educational programmes, scholarship funds for advanced education, recreational and cultural facilities, and helped the newcomer to get acquainted with aspects of Canadian culture.

Beginning with October 1947, up until December 1949, 1085 children arrived in groups of twenty to fifty at Canadian ports, where they were met by representatives of the communities to which they were allocated; communities where there were established Jewish child care agencies. Later, some of the children were replaced in smaller centres under the supervision of local children's aid societies; 460 of these were brought to Toronto and placed in the care of the Jewish Family and Child Service.

aspects to the finding and transplanting of large groups of children from one culture — in this case, from the culture of the concentration camps — to another — that of Canada. For example, there is the whole process of selection and screening and preparation for immigration. There is the important role which volunteers and the entire community had in preparing for their coming and the emotional significance these children had for them.

There is the special area of job placement and the problems some of these youths had in relation to work, and which were a reflection of their fantasies of Canada's inexhaustible opportunities.

This paper being limited as to time, is limited in scope. It will touch briefly upon the use which one agency, the Jewish Family and Child Service of Toronto, made of case work understanding and experience to help these children work through their emotional problems and the problems inherent in immigration, to the point where they achieved a sense of their own worth as people. Towards this, the agency's concrete services were, of course, essential — adequate financial assistance, adequate spending allowances, foster and boarding homes, adoption homes, medical and dental care.

Child welfare practice had built up a body of knowledge and skills which agencies have used to help the rejected and deprived child, the unadjusted adolescent, to find some satisfactions necessary to his growth and development. These we counted on in our helping relationship to these European orphans. But they were not enough, for the experience and feelings which these children brought with them were strange to us and different from anything we had previously encountered.

Moreover, a large number of them were youths of 17 and 18, an age group about which caseworkers raise many questions as to their skill in helping. Most striking in their difference from other youths at this age, and shattering to the caseworker, was the fact that the large majority of them had never experienced adolescence. They had been catapulted from childhood straight into adulthood. We found ourselves working with individuals whose behaviour was, on the one hand, symptomatic of repressed needs for the dependent relationships of early childhood. At the same time their behaviour reflected highly experienced and worldly adults who had managed to stay alive, largely because of their iron self-control, their wits and their strength.

Who were these children and youths? What kind of lives had they led? What did it mean to them to enter a strange country, not knowing the language, having to relate themselves to unknown mores, differences in values? What were their hopes and fears as they entered this long-sought refuge — Canada?

From the individual histories which preceded them from the offices on the International Relief Organisation in Paris, Brussels, Prague and Rome, and later from our personal knowledge of them, we found that:

These young people, ranging in age from 7 to 18, and coming to us from the various Displaced Persons camps and children's institutions in Germany, France, Belgium, Greece and Italy, were nationals of twelve different European countries. In educational background they included children who had what was equivalent to High School graduation, to those who were completely illiterate. Some had the use of five languages while the vocabulary of one youth who had existed for over a year crouched in a dark cellar, almost starved, consisted of a total of thirty words! In the Reception Centre which we used for a brief period of study prior to placement, this particular child was observed to be seemingly entirely removed from people, separating himself deliberately from the others and wandering about alone.

The majority, completely orphaned, without remaining relatives, had been driven out of their countries of birth by the Nazis. All had experienced cruel physical hardships; many had seen their parents and siblings killed before their eyes, and had worked in concentration camps, 12 to 14 hours a day, sometimes walking a total of eight miles to and from their place of work. They had lost their parents at the beginning of the war, were without familial ties for six years, and on their own. The very young children had died. Fortunate were the ones who had managed to conceal themselves in the woods and had joined Partisan groups, and those who were hidden by and shifted from one Christian family to another.

These had experienced some warmth in human relationships, and they, together with the older adolescents whose early formative years were spent with loving and accepting parents, had feelings of self-respect, and were able to relate themselves to people; compared to the others, they had less problem. Those who had fought as partisans had a feeling of status and of having contributed to the war effort. Important in their capacity for adjustment was the fact that they had been able to give expression to their hostility and aggression.

The children who had spent years in concentration camps were different. The sudden adjustment which they had to make in their formative years to the sadism of Fascist society created a pattern of living which, in a normal society, is considered unsocial and immoral. Yet this was the only pattern if one were to survive. Trust was betrayed so often that it became a foolishly dangerous way of relating to people. Since Nazi tactics so often used one person against another, one could not even trust one's fellow prisoners. Success in lying, in stealing food, in outwitting the authority of the camp, was an achievement, since often it meant the difference between life and death.

From the experiences of the war, we know that our captured soldiers adopted similar behaviour as a means of adjustment when circumstances required it. However, while these soldiers were aware of what they were doing, these youngsters, who did not know any life outside the camps, and whose memory of earlier days seemed obliterated, integrated this pattern as part of their growing up.

To show any feeling because of what happened to them was also dangerous, because it was an indication of weakness, and the weak could not work and were exterminated. These children learned that the only way to exist was to follow directions, to take in as much food as they could get, to show no reactions, and to do what was expected of them. These young people needed help towards a reorganization of personality. To help them to an understanding of their situation, to provide experiences and a consistently warm and accepting human relationship through which they might very gradually dare to trust a human being, and dare to feel and express what they felt, was the responsibility of the agency.

The high hopes with which most came to this country were reflected in their eager, lively faces when they first arrived. All hoped to be adopted, and again to become children and members of a family; they wanted desperately to belong. Many families here too, hoped for adoption, even of adolescent children. Because many of them needed a period during which they could test out their new setting, people and themselves, before such placements could succeed, both children and families needed help in facing and working through their early disappointments.

To illustrate, there was Joseph, age 17, who came to us from a children's centre in Prien, France. He was born in Bucharest, the eldest of five children. His father, a skilled craftsman, was proud of this trade and had his own shop. They were a happy family. Joseph's mother loved her children and constantly busied herself with them as most mothers of five would. She was only 33 when the Nazis marched in and drove the Jews out of Bucharest, and Joseph witnessed her death just before he, his father and brothers, together with other Roumanian Jews, started on an 8-day march to Auschwitz. On this march, Joseph saw the older people and young children shot or beaten to death when they fell out of line as their strength failed them. He, alone of his family, reached Auschwitz, a concentration camp. Following liberation, he was brought to Prien, and then to Canada. This lad, as so many others, at an age when he should have been at school, worked 14 hours a day and lived in fear. He was one of those who had once been loved and cared for, and his fantasies were of a home and family. He longed to be close to people, to feel that someone cared. Secretly he would ask himself, "Is it possible that there can ever be a time when someone will actually care what happens to me?"

At last he has arrived in Canada, and has received such a warm welcome! At first his hopes seem realized, then he feels strange, an outsider, fearful lest he not find a niche for himself. There is an element of dependency in his attitude. He would like the agency to take over and solve all his problems. At the same time he has a strong drive for independence. Because of his uncertainty about himself, he assumes an air of great self-assurance; he mistrusts the motives of people's kindness. He brings to Canada the behaviour that he was forced to develop in his struggle for survival. He comes with an idealization of life in Canada and the contrast between this picture and the realities of life here is frustrating and at first even shattering. His job does not pay enough and he goes through four jobs in two months.

The standards and values of our culture confuse him. The family with whom he has been placed receives him with all the understanding and warmth he dreamed of. But he cannot respond. He wants to, but he has forgotten how. He recalls his own family and his feelings get mixed up. How can he give to others what belonged to his own, who died, while he remained alive? He is cold and removed, he does not know how to live with people, nor with himself. The foster family with whom he was placed and who longed to make up to him for what he had missed, is disappointed to see him "ungrateful and unappreciative". They give broad hints that it will be best if he goes. Joseph reacts to this with despair over his failure. He asks himself whether the struggle to survive was worth it, since here too, life means struggle and pain. He needs help to see that adjustment and change is a slow process and that failure at the first try is normal.

This youth was able to make use of the help he received. In the weekly interview with his caseworker he told and retold her about his home and his family; he related to her dreams that he had recurrently — in one frequently recurrent dream his parents were hold-

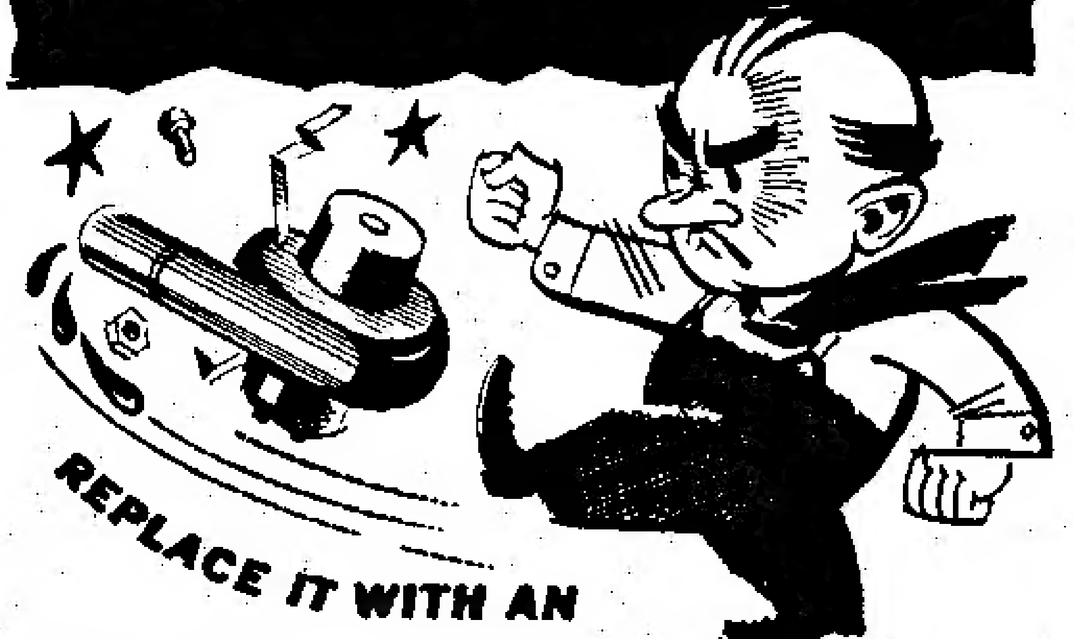
GET RID OF YOUR OLD OIL GLUTTON



REPLACE IT WITH AN

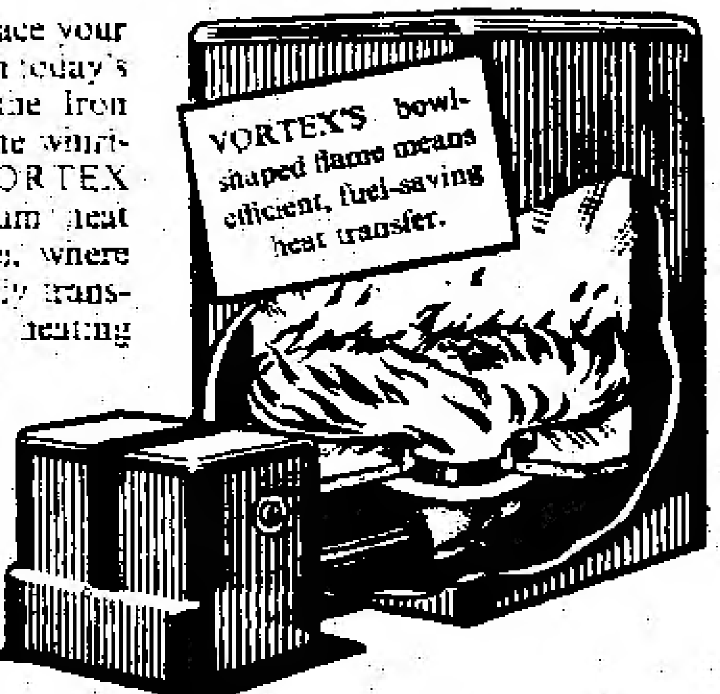
IRON FIREMAN

Vortex OIL BURNER

Saves up to 30% of your fuel!

A new type, bowl-shaped flame reduces fuel-wasting heat losses

Now's the time to replace your old-style oil burner with today's finest post-war unit—the Iron Fireman VORTEX. The whirling bowl-shaped VORTEX flame releases maximum heat right at grate-line level, where it can be most efficiently transferred into the home heating system. Heat loss is cut to a minimum and the extra heat [illegible] cuts [illegible] as much as 30%.



VORTEX'S bowl-shaped flame means efficient, fuel-saving heat transfer.

IRON FIREMAN Automatic Furnaces and Boilers with built-in VORTEX oil burners

These compact heating units are perfectly adaptable to all three types of home heating systems — warm air, steam or hot water. Their heating surfaces are specially designed to utilize fully the intense heat produced by the VORTEX Radiant Flame.

Save up to 30% on OIL
REDUCED FUEL BILL

Guaranteed Performance
Your Iron Fireman dealer will test your present oil burner free and determine the increased efficiency you will get with an Iron Fireman Vortex. You can have this figure stipulated in a written guarantee when you install your Iron Fireman.

Replace your old oil burner with a fuel saving IRON FIREMAN VORTEX OIL BURNER

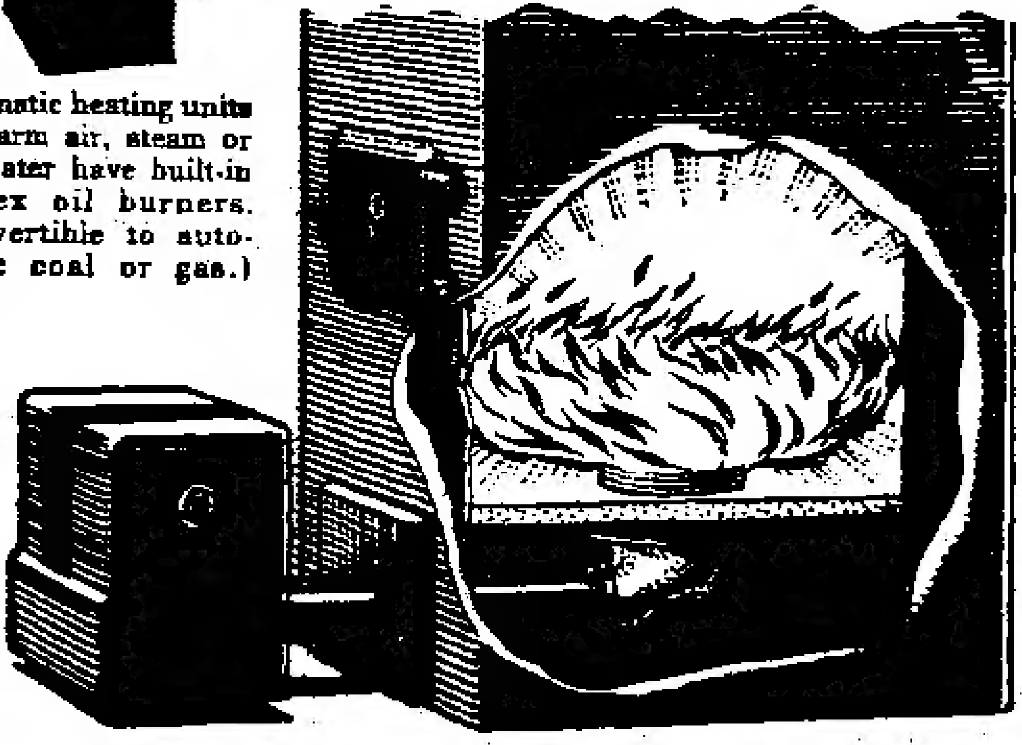
There's a lot more heat in fuel oil than your old-style burner can get out of it. The Iron Fireman Vortex delivers those extra heat units, and when you see it in action you can readily understand why. Its whirling vortex of intense radiant flame is different from any other oil fire. It is shaped like a bowl, covering the hearth and sweeping the furnace walls. Heat is generated above the grate line where it strikes directly into the main heating surfaces.

You can count on greater comfort, too. Temperature is steady and uniform. There's no "cold 70" because the short firing cycle (short on-and-off periods) keeps air circulating. Old-style burners waste fuel when set for "short cycling." Operation is trouble-free—no moving parts inside the furnace.

Iron Fireman's exclusive Syncrostat control system automatically holds temperatures at the day and night levels you select. Set the dials just once and your furnace chores are done for the winter.

Learn more about the Iron Fireman Radiant Flame Vortex oil burner. Come in, phone, or mail coupon.

Automatic heating units for warm air, steam or hot water have built-in Vortex oil burners. (Convertible to automatic coal or gas.)



Iron Fireman Vortex oil burner converts your present furnace or boiler into an automatic heating plant.

ALABASTER

—a new kind of hand lotion

A hand lotion that requires only a few drops after washing to give a new hand beauty. Longer lasting, quicker drying, you'll find Alabaster infinitely better — yet less costly. Nothing will prove this to you half so quickly, nor so definitely as your first application.

QUÉBEC looks to the future

QUEBEC believes in time-honored principles which stand for economic expansion based on sound and lasting ideas. In the practical things of life, that means respect for honest investment, encouragement to private initiative, belief that capital and labor are partners in the task of building a greater province.

In the vast area of Québec, which exceeds the combined areas of England, France, the Maritime Provinces, New York state, the New England states and California, lies the unmistakable opportunity for investment, because of that primary factor — the sanity of the people and their desire for orderly progress — and because of immense natural resources barely touched.

MANUFACTURING

The gross value of manufactured goods totals more than $2.5 billion dollars annually. One of the largest Québec industries is Pulp and Paper which furnished about 52% of the Dominion total Pulp and Paper production.

MINING

Production of Québec mines exceeds $92 millions a year. The three principal items making up this total are Gold, Copper and Asbestos. Gold accounts for about 24% of the total value. Copper for about 15% and Asbestos 27%, biggest for first time in 30 years.

FORESTRY

The most recently recorded figures indicate that the value of timber cut in 1947 exceeded $205 millions. During that year, Québec produced 3,099,658 tons of paper with a value of $209 millions. This was more than half for all of Canada. Québec who produced in 1947, 1,300,000,000 Ft. B.M. of lumber, with a value of $64 millions.

TOURISTS

During 1949 American tourists spent over $125,000,000 in the Province of Québec — a new record. Impressive as this figure is, development of the industry has just begun, for where else on such a scale can the tourist find impressive rivers, thousands of lakes, abundant fish and game and people who have lost none of the graces of hospitality which distinguished their forebears.

ELECTRIC POWER

The available and developed water power in Québec totals more than 17,000,000 horsepower. The capacity of turbines installed amounts to 6 millions h.p. The receipt of energy sold by central electric stations exceed $80,000,000 annually. At present no limit can be seen to future possibilities. Some water power developments of the province already in operation are of gigantic size and emphasize what is to come.

AGRICULTURE

The most recently recorded figures indicated that the annual gross value of agricultural products was more than $307 millions. The larger contributors to this total were: Field Crops $158 millions, Milk Products $119,500,000, Poultry Products $19 millions, Maple Products $11 millions.

Mr Wm. Connor,

April 19. 1950

Dear Mr. Connor,

We have just finished our fourth heating season with radiant-heating and our experience has been so satisfactory that we thought you should know of it.

We expected unusual comfort throughout the house, but we never expected such small fuel bills! We have been especially pleased to discover that radiant heating in our basement makes that part of the house as liveable and comfortable as the main floor.

This is a great boon to parents for it means that the basement becomes a warm and comfortable playroom.

We like our house and we like radiant heating, but if we ever build again we would not consider any other system.

Yours very truly,
Gilbert A Milne

PENTOX

In our damp climate, moisture is waiting for a chance to get into your woodwork and do its evil work. Moisture makes wood swell, warp—causes rot under the paint, and often you don't know it until it's too late.

Before you paint wood,
SEAL THE PORES WITH PENTOX!

PENTOX is the penetrating, toxic Sealer and Preserver that keeps wood dry under the paint.

PENTOX primes, seals and preserves—keeps moisture out . . . provides an ideal surface for your top coat of paint . . . a better, longer lasting paint job.

PENTOX is easily applied with a brush and dries to touch in [illegible] minutes. It costs less than the cost of paint it saves. Perfect, too, for basement game rooms, garden furniture, country homes, boats and cabins.

A Canadian product sold in imperial measure by better paint, hardware and lumber dealers.

Spode ... designed for the discriminating

In 18th century England, tea imported from China came wrapped in elaborately hand-decorated paper. Spode artists adapted the enchanting designs and expressed in several Spode dinnerware patterns the everlasting beauty of oriental culture.

Down through the years, people of fine taste have fondly treasured the traditional quality and lasting loveliness of their Spode dinnerware.

Brightest LIFE'S ~~DARKEST~~ MOMENTS

STENO SUE didn't know what to do—for headache, upset stomach. Lucky, the Boss guessed her distress. Sparkling Bromo-Seltzer relieved Sue's headache and indigestion fast, brightened her whole day.

TRUCKER BILL got quite a Thrill! Won a prize for skillful driving. Bill knows just what to do if long drives and heavy traffic give him headache, edgy nerves. He takes fast-acting, pleasant-tasting Bromo-Seltzer for fast help!

RADIO STAR REG was all on edge. But refreshing Bromo-Seltzer soon helped him relax. Then, Reg's program was the day's brightest moment—thanks to Bromo-Seltzer's fast relief.

For brighter moments, happier days—
Let Bromo-Seltzer help THREE WAYS!

BROMO-SELTZER

1. Relieves Headache 2. Settles Upset Stomach 3. Calms Edgy Nerves

THE KOSHER SALAD & COOKING OIL

For many years chefs, in all parts of Canada, have shown a preference for MAZOLA—connoisseurs of delicious, salad dressings or mayonnaise appreciate the fine quality of Mazola. Mazola, made from sun-ripened corn, mixes easily with other necessary ingredients and imparts a distinctive and delightful flavour to salad dressings.

Mazola is unequalled for deep frying or sauteing and is most economical to use, as it can be used over and over again without carrying the odor or flavour of one food to another.

Have you tried Mazola for lighter, fluffier cakes! Send for Jane Ashley's folder of Tested Mazola Recipes containing cake, entree and salad recipes.

Order MAZOLA from your grocer in sealed tins, three popular sizes, with pouring spout.

FAB MAKES IT EASY!

My Washing Comes Out White As New
With FAB it's All So Easy
No Scrub, No Soak, No Boil, No Bleach,
FAB MAKES IT EASY!

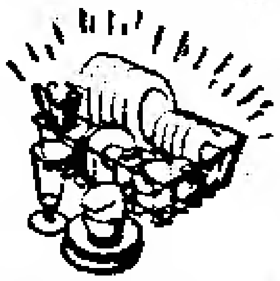
NO SOAKING WITH FAB—No soaking saves work! Fab's Super-Wetting Action loosens dirt faster and cleans more thoroughly! Makes soaking unnecessary.

NO BLEACHING WITH FAB—No bleaching saves work! Fab contains a new ingredient that leaves your wash pure white without bleaching.

NO SCUM WITH FAB—No scum saves work! No soapy scum in washer or dishpan because Fab isn't a soap. So you needn't spend time rinsing scum from clothes and dishes.

FAB makes clothes White-dishes Sparkle!

Try Fab for your family wash. Fab makes clothes white—dishes sparkle—because it leaves no soap scum.
Try Fab for washing your dishes, too. See how they sparkle . . . how clean they are!



FAB—SAVES TIME, WORK, HANDS, HOT WATER

WASHES EVERYTHING

FAB
MAKES CLOTHES WHITE—DISHES SPARKLE!

Do you use hard water or soft water? It doesn't matter. Don't worry about it. In any water, Fab cannot form soap scum or soap film in either your dishpan or washing machine.

SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

classic!
in Canada Unlimited
O'Keefe's

The nation's top golfers had gathered at Saint John, N.B. It was July 23, 1949 . . . and eight four-man teams were set to tee off. At stake was the annual inter-provincial golf team championship—classic struggle for the ownership of the Willingdon Cup.

Upsetting pre-tourney predictions, Quebec took the lead in the 36-hole contest. Ontario's last man on the 17th hole needed a 72 to even the. In a brilliant last-ditch display he took a one-over-par 71. Ontario had won Canada's hardest-fought cup match.

Skill and keen sportsmanship put golf in the first rank of our summer sports. And together, skill with sportsmanship help you in work and play . . . keeping your scope for opportunity in Canada . . . unlimited.

Easy-to-make
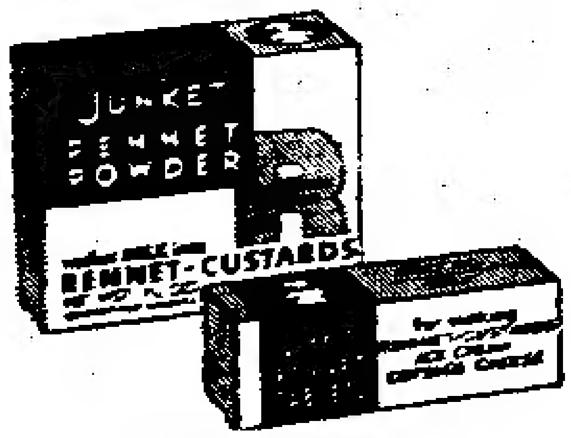
are a favourite with everyone

Babies, children, grown-ups — the whole family enjoys milk that's made into delicious rennet desserts. They're made in a jiffy with either Rennet Powder or Rennet Tablets and milk. No bother with cooking. And the rennet enzyme makes them more readily digestible than plain milk.



The Perfect "Milchig" Dessert

Both "Junket" Brand Rennet Powder and "Junket" Brand Rennet Tablets are Kosher products. They are made in conformance with the Dietary Laws and may be used with perfect confidence in the Jewish home.

"JUNKET" BRAND FOODS

"Junket" is the trade-mark of Chr. Hansen's Laboratory Inc., for its rennet and other food products and is registered in Canada and U. S.

FRY'S
PURE BREAKFAST
COCOA
1 LB. NET

Breakfast-time, mid-afternoon, late evening — whenever you want a delicious drink — enjoy cheering cups of Fry's Cocoa.

Sip its superb goodness . . . enjoy its tempting chocolate taste. Serve it and watch the family come back for more!

Fry's Cocoa is tops for cooking, too. It mixes so easily, so smoothly — and mm-m, that richer chocolate flavor!

No wonder Fry's is Canada's favorite — by 3 to 1.*

Little DP Girl Wins Essay Prize

After the war ended, Dinah Room, a little girl of twelve, was found in a camp by a young American soldier. Touched by the girl's loneliness, for all her folks had been liquidated by the Nazis, he wrote to his mother back in New York about her. The mother wrote to Dinah, and a lengthy correspondence followed. When the little girl came to the United States, aided in her immigration by HIAS, the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society, she was adopted by the American soldier's family, with whom she is now living in happiness as one of their own.

She is making good progress in school and in Americanization, and last month won a prize offered by a great New York Yiddish daily for an essay entitled "What Democracy Means To Me." Grateful for the help that HIAS had accorded to her in making her immigration to America possible, and with the hope that others would be helped as she was, Dinah donated her prize money to HIAS to assist the global migration agency in its humanitarian work of rescue.

The following is the prize-winning essay:

Ask a little girl who has seen her mother and father shot in front of her eyes, and she will tell you what democracy means.

Ask a little girl who was kept in hiding for a year because she was a Jew, and she will tell you what democracy means.

Ask a little girl who was turned over to the Nazis disguised as a gentile to work in a torpedo factory for four long years at slave labor, and she will tell you what democracy means.

Ask a little girl who went through torture, hunger, cold, and sickness and was whipped so that she could not sleep at night, and she will tell you what democracy means.

Ask a little girl who during a bombing ran for shelter only to step on a land mine and whose leg was so badly damaged that they were ready to amputate. Luckily, the American liberators came with their blood transfusions. After ten operations her leg was saved.

All that happened to me. Dinah Room, of Breslau. After being thrown around in different countries and orphanages I was found by a Prince Charming, who brought me to my castle, "America."

Now I feel like Cinderella, and in this wonderful country I am forgetting the terrible nightmare and getting a fine free education. God bless America, my new home.

Reports Limited World Wool Supply

Prices of British men's wear fabrics are high, with most lines withdrawn, was reported by I. M. Cohen of Joseph H. Cohen & Sons, of New York, one of the largest clothing manufacturers in the United States.

Mr. Cohen has just returned from an eight-week survey of conditions in England, France, Italy and Portugal. He said that prices of British fabrics were closely attuned to world raw wool levels inasmuch as the mills have but a limited fine wool inventory. Early in June, he noted, it was possible to make a few attractive purchases of fine worsteds and tropicals in England, but since that time most lines have been withdrawn.

Prices of worsteds in Italy are somewhat lower than in England, but quotations there have also moved higher. In an interview, Mr. Cohen told the New York Times that control of raw wool prices was beyond the grasp of the clothing industry or mills in the U. S. In his opinion, wool has now become an international commodity comparable in its importance and value to oil.

"To a considerable degree," Mr. Cohen said, "raw wool has become a government commodity. Governments are interested in it from two major standpoints—its use in war or defense preparations and its functions as a barter commodity having an intrinsic world-wide value. "The mills have but limited inventories of raw wool and, accordingly, the latest price of raw wool tends to be translated quickly into higher fabric prices."

Mr. Cohen pointed out that, while prices of other commodities were heading downward earlier this year, raw wool prices continued to advance. He cited active buying by Russia and Czechoslovakia as of considerable importance. Czechoslovakia was bidding for business in the U. S. in May, but since that time prices on Czech fabrics have been advanced sharply. The Czechs are now using their raw wool for fabric exports to Russia.

Mr. Cohen cited prices on several types of British fabrics as showing a marked uptrend compared with levels at the time of devaluation of the British pound sterling. The British mills haven't got enough fine wool, he said. A worsted priced at $4 a yard at the time of devaluation was $5 in June, and today is off the market, he added. In Italy, a similar worsted sold for $3.60 last June and is priced at $4.08.

frustrations and burdens. Religion must now speak and give emphasis to man's nobleness and his potential for goodness through the virtues he will sincerely practice.

When the ancient Psalmist proclaims: "I shall walk before God in the land of the living", these words not only symbolize for us the living present but direct us to reflect upon a waste land, a desert land of the past 2,000 years, which has become a land of life and a progress and healing not only for the Jewish people, but for mankind. Thankful are we to God on this day, that ours was the privilege of beholding again during the past summer weeks the Holy Land and to witness the miracle of "Israel Reborn."

While in Jerusalem, we climbed to holy Mount Zion. Here in the deep recesses of a stony fortress-like building on the very top of this mountain, is the very shrine where rests the tomb of King David. As we made our way through the rooms of this shrine in darkness, we heard the voices of men, women and children, Jews of every clime, Yemenite and Chassidic, Polish and Moroccan, and natives of the holy land, all chanting songs, crying their hearts out and kissing the very tomb of the author king of the Psalms.

In this building on Mount Zion, we also visited the room where there is stored torn Scrolls of the holy law and Torahs from abandoned Jewish communities throughout the world. Included are several Torahs saturated with the blood of martyrs. Then, too, we came to a cave-like place where are gathered and kept the ashes of 20,000 of Jewish dead whose lives were quenched by the Nazis in the crematoria of Germany. We soon emerged from this depressing dark past, from the atmosphere of destruction and death to a bright atmosphere of life and of activity. Here as we looked out from the heights of Mount Zion, on lovely new Jerusalem we beheld a people reborn, a people struggling to protect the roots of an infant democracy, a people happy and determined to build for the glory of God, for the glory of Israel, and for the betterment of humanity, a pattern of life based on the teachings of the Jewish prophets that shall be an example in social justice and brotherhood for all mankind. Here we beheld a land of hope, a land of love and friendliness and a land of freedom which keeps its gates wide open to all who wish to come to Israel, the land of the living.

We approach the New Year 5711 with thankfulness to God that he has granted us life, that he has given us the ability to rise above tears, that he has kept us from stumbling and last, but not least, that ours is the blessing and the privilege to behold the miracle of the land of the living, "Israel Reborn", the land which is bringing comfort and inspiration to the Jews everywhere. May God grant unto all of us a "Leshono Tovo".

their years in seeking after vain things which bring no profit. Look well to your souls and consider your acts; forsake each of you his evil ways and return to God.'" Thus the Shofar is the call to Teshuvah, to repentance and to renewal.

"Seek ye the Lord while He may be found," urges the prophet Isaiah. "When is He to be found?" ask our sages. "In the ten days of Awe, between Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur." Hence these days are days of Tefilah, of prayer and supplication. God is closer to man when man prays, because through sincere prayer man comes closer to God. Man's dependence upon God is nowhere more poignantly expressed than in our High Holyday prayers. He is the Judge of our lives, the Arbiter of our destinies. But He is no capricious Judge; His judgment is a consequence of our past living and the strength of our determination to follow His ways. He is the

the concern of the National Committee or of regional Public Relations Committees.

Education as such, may find its support in our concern with intercultural education, or may make use of such available mass media as films, radio, or the printed word. In addition to this, we contemplate the development of a Speakers' Bureau for the purpose of interpreting the various aspects of Jewish life to the non-Jewish public.

When shall we say our task is ended? Certainly not until there shall be the sure evidence of justice within our gates, when law shall deter men bent on evil, and when all Canadians shall live together in harmonious friendship.

"Melech", the King, Who dispenses justice and has the power to deal mercifully. Our prayer is both a plea before the Throne and an argument before the Bench.

Our prayers reveal our deepest yearnings, our hopes and our visions. "Now, therefore, impose thine awe upon all thy creatures, that they may all form a single band to do thy will with a perfect heart. Give glory unto thy people, joy to thy land and gladness to thy city. May all wickedness be wholly consumed like smoke. And Thou, O Lord, shalt reign over all thy creatures." What nobler vision has been expressed by any people than in the prayer "Al Ken Nekaveh", a prayer originally composed for the High Holydays but now become the concluding chapter of every religious devotion in the synagogue because of the sublimity of its view. The compendium of High Holyday prayers, known as the Machsor, may well serve as a source of the ideals of our faith.

Around the celebration of every festival in Jewish life traditions evolved and customs arose, adding a folkway intimacy to the prescribed ritual. Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur are no exceptions. Dipping an apple in honey and expressing a wish for a sweet year; the familiar greeting, 'May you be inscribed for a good year'; wending one's way to the waterfront and intoning the verse of Tashlich, are customs of the Jewish New Year. The minhag of Kapporos on the eve of Yom Kippur has assumed different forms in different ages; in Talmudic times a potted plant was employed as a symbol of life and growth, in the middle ages a fowl represented escape from slaughter, in our own times a bundle of coins is the token of our charity. Each locale, oriental and occidental, added its peculiar and colorful embellishment to the celebration of the Days of Awe.

But the underlying theme was present everywhere: Repentance, Prayer and Charity stir the mercies of the Heavenly Judge, Who will bestow His grace upon mankind through prolonging the life of the individual and bringing closer the Days of the Messiah, of untroubled peace and happiness for all.

super-weapons? The decision rests once more with us. The time for fighting is over and yet the chatter of guns in a little corner of the world reverberates throughout the entire universe.

Coming to the synagogue is not the answer to everything. But it does and will continue to point the way to peace and security. Those who have renounced God in Communism are the first to fight, just as those who renounced God for a dictator. There are special hells for the losers, and one cannot win unless one is on God's side.

This year the children who were ten, are twenty. There are the reserves, there are the military encampments to teach warfare, as the schools teach literature. The cycle of another war has been completed, but it is sad and frightening to note that the time between wars is shortening and the ways of war have mechanical brains behind them.

Your religious leaders cry out with the voices of the prophets. They demand a reason and a solution, and a cessation to the present state of affairs. They know that if there is no God there can be no world. Why is it so difficult to teach this lesson? This year we must concentrate on building, not destroying. We must build better schools, better religious institutions, better homes and better instruments for finer living. We must build with a sense of permanence. We must build knowing that whatever we do, wherever we are, we cannot hide from the atomic bomb or from God.

and which by some are viewed as a return to anti-Semitic tendencies, are considered shameful in Germany and are, therefore, being rejected. Investigations are being made at the present moment to discover the instigators of those transgressions." Chancellor Adenauer: "In the distraught times in which we live it is of particular importance that the spiritual and intellectual leaders of the nations should constantly hold before the eyes of their peoples the concept of the brotherhood of all men."

Ferdinand Friedensburg, Deputy Mayor of Greater Berlin: "If Germany is to have respect, confidence and sympathy, these must be deserved by unmistakable proof of a new spirit. Nothing in this respect will certainly be of such weight as the attitude of the German people toward the Jews. This problem will be the real touchstone for the renovation of the German spirit, for the sincerity and for the results of our efforts."

"It is wrong to overestimate the danger of a new antisemitism, but it is foolish to underestimate or to neglect it. Such a current of public opinion as manifested itself in the incredible cruelty of Auschwitz does not become extinct within a few years. There must be a steady fight against it by non-official organizations and by the German governments themselves. A campaign must be waged by political parties, religious corporations, schools and by everyone in his private and public life."

I could quote, if space permitted, from the remarks made by other Germans at the Brotherhood Conference in Paris or made to me personally while I was in Germany.

Chapters of the German organization working for brotherhood have been established in Munich, Frankfort, Weisbaden, Berlin, Stuttgart and new chapters are being organized each month. Alfred Meyer, a Weisbaden lawyer, has been the Jewish person who has played a major role in this activity. Mr. Meyer in a brief report says: "All along we have had the support of the German authorities. Prof. Heuss, the Bavarian Minister of the Interior at Munich, the Minister of the Interior at Munich, the Minister of Public Education at Wurtemberg, the Rector of the University at Frankfort have given time to our efforts."

Yes, there are forces for brotherhood in Germany but the victory is far from being won. I myself visited Dachau, with its gas chamber bearing on the outside the word for shower bath so its victims would enter without the screams of people facing death, with its four furnaces for the consuming of bodies that were carried to them from the gas chamber, the gallows, and the firing squad.

Human relations never reached so low a point in other lands, yet no land has been free of this terrible cancer of prejudice. Truly, the time had come for the formation of "World Brotherhood".

The Chief Rabbi of France, Mr. Isaie Schwartz, at the Paris Conference, quoting the Prophet Hosea, said, "Do your sowing according to the principles of justice and you will harvest according to the principles of love; mark out your furrows, it is the time to set out on the quest for the Eternal."

As the World Brotherhood marks out the furrows on the World level you and I must mark them out in our nations.

The Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, supported as it is by Catholics, Jews, and Protestants, laymen and clergymen, wages a day-to-day campaign to break down the barriers that separate Canadian people and to build a true Brotherhood of Man under the Fatherhood of God in this nation. It solicits the cooperation of all those who are men of goodwill. For added information about "World Brotherhood" or the "Canadian Council of Christians and Jews" write to the author of this article and the director of the Canadian organization, at 221 Victoria Street, Toronto, Ontario.

ing out their arms to him, and he was always struggling to reach them, but never did — he told of the anguish that he always felt, — in another dream he was struck by lightning.

The anxiety and guilt which he had over the death of his parents and siblings at first stood in his way of developing relationships with other people. A tendency towards a thyroid condition developed, and he was operated on. The psychiatrist whom we consulted attributed the severity of his physical condition to his emotional disturbance. With the help of caseworker and psychiatrist, Joseph in time was convinced that there was nothing that he could have done to save his family. Because of the satisfactions he had experienced in his early familial relationship, he was able to like and be liked by people. Feeling the worker's understanding and support, he was able to take the frustration of not too satisfactory a boarding home, of not too satisfactory a job.

Two years after his arrival in Canada, and because of his need for love and family, Joseph had fallen in love. I quote from the case record, in which a closing entry had been made 14 months after Joseph's arrival. It is reopened as follows: "Joseph telephoned to ask for an appointment. He said that he knew his case was closed in the agency, but I had said that he could come back whenever he needed help and now he wanted to come in although it was not for help."

Then: "Joseph was shy in telling me about his girl. He said he did not want to discuss his feeling about this girl with anyone. It was just that she had a mother and father with whom she could talk about him and could tell them what was on her mind, whereas he had no one except me, who was both a mother and father to him." (The worker in this case was exactly five years older than Joseph.) "I assured him that anything he told me would remain between us, and us alone; that I knew love was a pretty intimate thing and that sensitive people did not talk freely and to anyone about it. Joseph felt relieved and began to tell me how he felt about the girl and of his hopes for marriage. Joseph went on to say that he hoped that when he was married, I would come to the wedding and would dance at his wedding — and when I said that I would like to do this, he said, 'I have shared all my sorrows with you. I also want — and it is right — that I should share my joy.' Although I had assured Joseph that I would attend his wedding, he telephoned me the day of the wedding to make sure that I would be there. His wedding was an informal, lovely affair. Joseph was a little nervous, but looked happy as he was coming down the aisle. There were many speeches made about the bride's family, and this continued on to a point where Joseph was forgotten. Then a refugee who had come over with one of the trade groups said that he would like to speak about Joseph's family whom he had once known —and he got up and told of from what a fine family Joseph had come."

Of the network of services which the Canadian Jewish Congress and the Agency developed for the transplanting of these children into healthier soil, the most dynamic was the experience which it offered each child in his relationship with the case worker. It was the worker's consistent warmth and understanding and the ability which she gave him as the agency representative, that saw him through his initial feelings of failure, fear and mistrust. He needed help in facing and accepting limitations, in recognizing the responsibility he carried for his own adjustment, in facing squarely the difference between real independence and imagined independence. Depending on the worker's skill, (and where staff was unqualified this was weak) and the extent to which the individual child could use the relationship, there did take place some reorganization within the child so that he was able to move away from the memories and behaviour of the past to taking hold of what his present setting offered in order to find normal satisfactions for himself.

As we, the staff of the agency, were able to recognize our overprotective attitudes for what they were, and to realize that we could not compensate these children for their past, we began to trust more in their capacities and resilience. Part of the helping process was to stimulate them to speak of their experiences in the past, to let them feel again what it had meant to them, then and in the present, but finally our young clients had to be faced with the realization that they now had a present to live in and needed to relate themselves to this present.

It was also essential that the individual caseworker be convinced that the agency policies were sound in relation to foster and boarding home placement, maintenance budgets, spending allowances, educational and vocational planning; that she be firm in presenting these policies, and in expecting the young client to work within their limitations. But along with this, there had to be a real feeling for the struggle and pain which he experienced in becoming a disciplined, responsible adolescent.

One of the principal questions that received consideration at the beginning of the project was: For how long a period would these young people require and should receive material and casework help? For how long, if you will, was a period of dependency necessary to them? All children under 18 were regarded as wards. For those who were 18 and over, unless they were at school, in apprentice shops, or suffering from prolonged illnesses such as tuberculosis or severe emotional disturbances, we experimented with a time limit of approximately a year.

This time structure we set up with the 17 and 18 year olds in the beginning interviews. It has been our feeling that there was a psychological value to the youth in knowing that he and the agency were working together towards resolving, within a stated period of time, those of his problems which impeded his economic and social adjustment, and his relationships with people.

These youngsters aroused both in the community and the professional caseworker an intense desire to make up to them for their suffering. Thousands of Jewish families felt towards them as though they were the last survivors of their own blood relations whose destruction through Naziism they were mourning. The community vacillated between being the all-giving parent, to the rejecting and apathetic one when they did not receive the response they expected. It was part of the agency's interpretive job to help the lay community in understanding these newcomers and what their own hurt feelings meant.

The young children who came are either in adoption or foster homes, the older ones in boarding homes. Some have sought to fill the need to belong, to love and to be loved in marriage. Most of the adolescents seem like young men and women now, — they are self-reliant and have begun to feel that this is their country and their home. They work during the day and study at night. They have learned to manage their own affairs and are active in helping others to emigrate here. About 18 percent of those over 18 still have contact with the agency.

These children have enriched the emotional life of many families. We feel that they will also add to the human and other resources of Canadian life.

The Man Who Outbluffed The Nazis In A Ransom Deal For Jewish Lives

Saly Mayer, Swiss-Jewish businessman whose skilled negotiations during World War II saved the lives of 200,000 Hungarian Jews about to be deported by the Nazis to the notorious death camp of Auschwitz, Poland and who was Joint Distribution Committee director of operations in Switzerland for ten years as a leading figure in the Swiss-Jewish community, died of a heart attack at the age of 67, on Sunday night, July 30, in St. Moritz. A funeral took place in St. Gall, the little Swiss community in which he made his home, and from which he directed a fabulous wartime rescue network in behalf of Jews imprisoned in Hitler's Europe, at the expenditure of several millions of dollars.

In making known the news, which appeared in the Review recently, Edward M. M. Warburg, chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee, said "Jews everywhere have lost a rare and inspiring figure with the death of Saly Mayer. He gave his fullest devotion to the cause and welfare of his fellow Jews, and was responsible for helping to save literally hundreds of thousands. He believed implicitly that it was the duty of all to be their 'brother's keeper,' and he fulfilled that belief in a manner equalled by few men in his time."

Mayer's life-saving exploits, which at times involved him in considerable personal danger, were barely known even to American Jews who made his work possible through support of the United Jewish Appeal. Publicity-shy in the extreme, he liked to talk about American literature of which he was a voracious reader, but never about his activities which at one point took him into Germany for face-to-face talks with dread Gestapo officials. The summary report of the United States War Refugee Board, however, issued in September, 1945, when Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York was the Board's Executive Director, had high praise for Mayer's activities.

The War Refugee Board Report told how the Nazis in the spring and summer of 1944, striving to stave off defeat, sought to negotiate a vast ransom of 10,000 trucks and supplies in return for sparing the lives of the 200,000 remaining Jews of Hungary. Mayer, as JDC's representative, was approached in the matter by one Kurt Brecher, S.S. Representative for Hungary.

The JDC promptly notified the War Refugee Board, whose members, appointed by President Roosevelt, included the U.S. Secretaries of State, Treasury and War, and whose purpose was to rescue victims of oppression. At the same time, the JDC notified Mayer that as an American organization it could not entertain the ransom proposal, which would give aid and comfort to the enemy, but urged that he as a private Swiss citizen seek to protract the negotiations in the hopes that Hungarian Jews would be saved by ultimate Allied victory.

As told by the War Refugee Board Report, "There followed a protracted series of meetings between Saly Mayer and the German representatives, with the full knowledge of the Board and the State Department. Through the ingenuity and perseverance of Mayer, every imaginable dilatory tactic was employed and the talks continued for month after month. Terms had not yet been completed when the hostilities in Europe ceased."

Many of Mayer's meetings with the Nazi, Brecher, which he skillfully dragged out from August, 1944 to the war's end, took place

Begins Study Of Jewish Life Here

A basic long-range survey of American Jewish communal life has been initiated by a newly organized Committee on Community Organization of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, it was announced by Stanley C. Myers, of Miami, Florida, CJFWF president, who is serving as chairman of the Committee. It will: Analyze the current status and underlying principles of Jewish community organization in the United States and Canada — its purpose, scope, structure and functions. Discern the direction in which the organized Jewish communities are moving. Assist in strengthening community organization generally. More than 50 Jewish leaders from both nations are participating. Mr. Myers pointed out that events during the past decade have brought great changes in Jewish organization, and that a major transition is currently under way. "The key role of American Jewry means that what happens to us today and tomorrow will affect not only the 4,500,000 Jews of this country, but those throughout the world," he stated. "We need, therefore, to turn our attention to the factors which are conditioning the nature and development of Jewish communities in the United States and Canada, and will affect them in the future. We must turn our attention to the services maintained by local Jewish central organizations in behalf of their populations; to the machinery for providing those services; to the relationship of such programs to each other and to the goals which communities are setting for themselves. "Through this study of Jewish life we can determine how best to strengthen our communal programs, how most effectively to serve the future needs of the Jewish people in the United States and Canada, and how to help build strong, vigorous, developing communities."

The first step of the overall study, will be the gathering of all available facts on the present status of local Jewish community organizations. In addition, a technical committee of experts in the social science, community organization and research will advise on study methods and procedures. To test procedures, the Committee on Community Organization will also conduct a series of pilot studies in a number of Jewish communities

The first report on the Committee's progress will be delivered at the 1951 General Assembly of the Council of Jewish Federation and Welfare Funds to be held in Washington, D.C., December 1-4. At this time the Jewish communities will issue further directions to the study group in carrying out its objectives. Among the questions to which the CJFWF Committee on Community Organization will seek answers, are the following: What is the current status and structure of Jewish community organization?

What are the scope and function of the Jewish central community organizations?

What are the responsibilities of Jewish community organization in providing specific services?

What is the relationship of central community organization to its beneficiary and associated agencies? Of the central agency to other local Jewish organizations? Of the central agency to the programs and policies of Jewish national organizations? How do individuals and group and agency

PAPER PAYS TRIBUTE TO RETIRING U.S. ENVOY

United States Ambassador James G. McDonald who left Haifa, Israel, after nearly two years of service in Israel, was paid a glowing tribute by Israel's Jerusalem Post, formerly the Palestine Post, which said, "there is to our regret reason enough to believe that his well-deserved holiday and the end of his mission will coincide." The newspaper then added:

"Cordial and mutually beneficial relations with America are in the forefront of our Government's policy; that is perhaps rather different from any suggestion of allowing ourselves to be harnessed to the chariot of the Western bloc in its mid-east defense plans, even with the incentive of a blood transfusion of quasi-Marshall aid.

"It may be that Mr. McDonald fought our fight too well and another may come in his place who may conceivably help us more by liking us less.

"For our part we thank Mr. McDonald and remember him with gratitude as the prototype of unaffected, and in the true sense, philanthropic and democratic America."

U. S. PERMITS IRAQI STUDENT TO REMAIN

A Jewish student from Iraq, who has been studying in the United States and left his country because of persecution against the Jews there since the recognition of Israel as a nation, has been permitted to remain in the United States as an immigrant under provisions of the Displaced Persons Act, the American Jewish Congress, of 1834 Broadway, announced in New York.

Hailing the decision as "an important precedent which will extend the humanitarian privileges of the Displaced Persons Act to Jews from many Moslem lands," the Congress said it did not make public the name of the student granted immigrant's status "because of fear that the Iraq government might now retaliate against his kin."

"One of his brothers," the Congress said, "has been arrested and imprisoned for ten months because he was in possession of Jewish newspapers which had come from the United States."

CLASS IN COOKERY

two eggs
two tablespoons butter
one-half cup milk
one teaspoon vanilla
one cup sugar
one teaspoon baking powder
pinch salt
one cup flour

Beat eggs thoroughly; add sugar. Mix flour, baking powder and salt, sift, then add to egg mixture. Add vanilla and beat well. Bring milk to boiling point, and remove from fire. Add the butter to the milk, and allow it to melt, before adding milk and butter to cake mixture. Pour into a shallow greased pan and bake for one-half hour, in a 350-degree oven. Cool, and then spread a coconut topping. Place cake under broiler and leave there until topping is slightly brown. For the topping, mix well and make a paste of: one cup shredded coconut, five tablespoons brown sugar, three tablespoons butter, and two tablespoons sweet cream.

LIMA BEAN VEGETABLE SOUP

one-third cup lima beans
one-third cup soup mix
one marrow bone
one stalk celery
one sprig dill
one large carrot
one small onion
root parsley
pinch salt
one quart water (five cups)

Pour boiling water over beans and slip off the skins. Dice the celery, carrot, onion. Mix all ingredients together, and boil slowly for at least two hours. Add sprig of dill before serving.

ORANGE PIE

juice of one lemon
one large can cold evaporated milk
one package chocolate wafers three-quarters cup orange juice rind of one orange one package orange jello
one-half cup white sugar

Heat the orange juice, orange rind, lemon juice, sugar, and stir well, but do not allow to boil. Add the mixture to jello powder, stir, and chill for about half an hour, not allowing to set. Whip the cold milk until creamy. Lay the wafers on the bottom of tin, and along the sides, to be used as crust. Fold in the orange mixture to the milk, and pour on top of wafers. Chill in refrigerator. Garnish with coconut when set, and serve.

Mrs. B. Stein,

73 Indian Road, Toronto.

PRIZE-WINNING CHOCOLATE CAKE

five squares chocolate
one and one-half cups milk
two cups sugar
one-quarter pound butter
three eggs
pinch of salt
two cups flour
one teaspoon vanilla
one teaspoon baking soda, dissolved in three tablespoons warm water

Melt chocolate, milk, and one cup of the sugar in saucepan; bring to a boil and cool, stirring occasionally while cooling. Cream butter with the other cup of sugar; add eggs, one at a time, and mix well after each addition. Add cooled chocolate syrup, and then vanilla. Mix. Add flour alternately with soda which has been dissolved in water. Pour into greased cake-tins, and bake in a 350-degree oven for forty minutes.

Chocolate Icing

one cup powdered sugar
three tablespoons butter
two squares chocolate
one egg
one-quarter teaspoon vanilla
one quarter cup milk

Place sugar, milk, egg and vanilla in bowl, and set in larger bowl, over ice; and stir until egg is broken. Melt chocolate and butter and add to first mixture. Beat until icing is stiff enough to hold its shape.

Style Show Has Oriental Flavor

Twenty-seven costumes, flown to New York from Israel, were shown at a fashion show in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria given by Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, for the thirty-sixth annual convention, in New York.

The costumes were the work of the students at the Institute of Fashion and Design in Jerusalem, a vocational college modeled after the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York. The Institute in Jerusalem is supported by Hadassah, with $800,000 raised to date for the fiscal year 1949-'50. Part of this sum will go to the Institute, the rest to sister vocational institutes supported by the organization, says the New York Herald Tribune.

Well made and with an interesting blend of modern fashion design and ancient Jewish tradition, the clothes indicate the direction that the fashion industry in Israel will take, for students from the institute on graduation will be the designers and technicians of the new industry.

Many of the clothes, particularly the cocktail and evening gowns, had a spicy sophistication. Black velvet was a favored fabric. Beading and embroidery, many of the designs adapted from traditional Jewish motifs, added a rich Oriental flavor.

Designs were completely varied. Street dresses and suits were of pastel linens and shantung. Velvet and taffeta appeared in afternoon and evening dresses, while two sophisticated formal gowns were of organdy over taffeta and gold and silver lame.

Of particular note was the exquisite hand-detailing on many costumes. An intricate applique of white lace and tiny seed pearls formed a wide panel on the bodice and pointed collar of a black taffeta cocktail dress. Black velvet and jet beads offered a rich contrast of fitted taffeta jacket. One repeated applique design was a traditional motif of grapes and vine leaves. This appeared in velvet on the tulle veil of a wedding gown.

The establishment of a Center of Israeli Studies, in which American and foreign students will be trained as regional specialists in various professional fields, has been announced by Columbia University. The Center will be financed by the Jewish Agency. The students will concentrate on the present-day economic, political and social culture of Israel. They will be trained to do work of authority and influence in business, finance, journalism and government service, and to serve as specialists in research and teaching in the social sciences, religion and literature. The ZOA is undertaking the project of establishing university chairs in Hebrew Culture thoughout the United States.

The fear of "polio" — the dreaded infantile paralysis which reaches its peak in the summer and fall — hangs over the heads of hundreds of anxious parents during the hot months. The threat of polio may be lessened if children are kept clean and comfortably cool, if the drinking water is pure and children are not permitted to swim in polluted waters. Early medical care is essential if symptoms suggestive of polio appear.

Consul General Arthur Lourie, Deputy Representative in Israel's permanent delegation to the United Nations, has been advanced to the rank of Minister.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Blumer, Decarie Boulevard, announce the engagement of their daughter, Doris Lorraine, to Larry Levy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Levy, of Mattapan, Mass.; the wedding to take place the early part of November.

Dr. and Mrs. Bernard L. Hyams, Mount Stephen Avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Ballon Hyams, to Raymon Harold Rudin, son of Dr. and Mrs. Louis Rudin, of Edmonton, Alta.

The engagement of Jessie, daughter of Joseph Davine, Jeanne Mance Street, and the late Mrs. Victoria Davine, to Harry Abramovitch, son of Mrs. I. Abramovitch, City Hall Avenue, and the late J. Abramovitch, is announced; the wedding to take place on April 8, 1951, at Beth David Synagogue.

The engagement of Shirley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith, of Parksville, N.Y., to Robert Adessky, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. David Adessky, 5443 Jeanne Mance Street, is announced.

The engagement of Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Stenzler, 335 Parliament Street, Toronto, Ont.; granddaughter of Mrs. E. Stenzler, 5158 Casgrain Street, Montreal, to Morris Silver, son of Mrs. L. Silver, 211 Robert Street, Toronto, Ont., and the late L. Silver, is announced.

APPROACHING MARRIAGES

Mr. and Mrs. M. Simmerman, Park Avenue, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Honey, to Issie Lazar, son of Mrs. S. Lazar, Hutchison Street, and the late Mr. Lazar, to take place at Berman's, on September 23, at seven o'clock, Rabbi C. N. Denburg officiating.

MARRIAGES

ZIMEL-WEISER

The marriage of Clarice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius E. Weiser, 1132 St. Viateur Street West, to Aaron Zimel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Issie Zimel, 5897 St. Urbain Street, took place on June 15, at half-past six o'clock, at Beth David Synagogue. Rabbi I. Teicher and Cantor I. Dlin officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julius E. Weiser, who celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary on the same day. The bride was dressed in a floor-length gown of white Chantilly lace and tulle, in Queen Elizabeth style. Fashioned with a stand-up collar curving to a V at the front of the tightly-fitted bodice, it had long sleeves, ruffled at the wrists, and a tulle skirt, with a redingote lace overskirt, scalloped edges forming a two-yard train. Her scalloped poke-bonnet of lace had a fingertip-length scalloped tulle illusion veil; and her bouquet was a fan of white lace and tulle with mauve orchids and streamers. She had a single strand of pearls, the gift of the groom. Miss Paula Weiser, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She had a Nile-green tulle gown, with strapless bodice, and draped stole; with a full skirt and shorter overskirt, pointed at the back. Her headdress was of Talisman roses, and the same flowers trimmed a tulle fan, which she carried. Miss Carole Bernstein, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid, wearing an aquamarine-blue organdy gown, trimmed with white, and styled with a round neckline, short sleeves, and full, hooped skirt. She had a bandeau of blue and yellow flowers, and carried a basket of flowers to match. Marilyn Blidner, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, wearing a long yellow eyelet embroidered dress, fashioned with a low, round neckline trimmed with pale blue ribbon; puffed sleeves, and a full, hooped skirt, with a pale blue sash. Her headdress and flower basket matched those of the junior—bridesmaid. Louis Staviss was best man. The ushers were: Saul Greenfield; Louis Lesser, cousin of the bride; Irving Bernstein, Jack Freedman, Irving Maron; Harry Spivack, cousin of the groom; Joseph Rockstein and Moe Zimel, brother of the groom; and Arthur Kahlenberg, cousin of the bride, was junior usher, all wearing white dinner jackets, with black trousers, and maroon-shaded accessories. Leon and Harry Zimel, brothers of the groom, in full dress, were junior ushers. The synagogue was decorated with American Beauty roses and white peonies, the altar being banked with standards of white peonies and potted palms. The aisle was marked by three archways of American Beauty roses and ferns, the first and third having gateways decorated with roses. For the reception at the synagogue, white peonies and ferns, composing a trellis, were used as the background for the receiving line. Mrs. Weiser, mother of the bride, wore a rose-beige Chantilly lace gown, fashioned with a high, pointed collar; long sleeves, with tight cuff; and a short fitted jacket. The slim skirt ended with scallops below the knee, and then shaped into a ruffled, floor-length hemline, with a slight train at the back. She had a cinnamon-brown taffeta hat; gold-coloured accessories; and a bronze-shaded orchid wristlet. Mrs. Zimel, mother of the groom, wore a sky-blue lace gown. It was fashioned with a low, round neckline, long sleeves, pointed at the wrists; and a full skirt. She had a sky-blue tulle hat, trimmed with white flowers; silver-coloured accessories, and a white orchid corsage. Mrs. B. Bernstein, of Buffalo, N.Y., great-grandmother of the bride, wore a mauve dress, trimmed with pink; a mauve hat, trimmed with pink flowers, and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. P. Bernstein, grandmother of the bride, wore a cinnamon-brown crepe and lace gown; with a beige tulle hat, brown accessories, and a pink orchid corsage. Mrs. I. Kushner, grandmother of the groom, wore an air-force blue crepe gown; with a white hat, and white accessories; and a mauve orchid corsage. The bride's table was decorated with the wedding cake, set between arrangements of American Beauty roses and white snapdragons. Each table, set in cabaret style, held a bowl filled with American Beauty roses. The bride and groom spent their wedding trip in New York, and Atlantic City, N.J. For travelling, the bride wore a tan shantung dress, with a matching bolero jacket; cinnamon-brown hat, and brown accessories; and an orchid corsage. Others present from out of town were: Mrs. E. Brockman, of Buffalo, N.Y., great-aunt of the bride; Mrs. L. Friedman, of Detroit, Mich., aunt of the bride; Mrs. L. Simrod, and Herbert and Naomi Simrod, aunt, and cousins of the bride, of Toronto, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. S. Waiser, of North Bay, Ont., great-uncle and great-aunt of the bride; and Mr. and Mrs. D. Slover and Mrs. A. Sinclair, of Ottawa, Ont.

Cancer has been known for more than 3,000 years. It was feared by the Egyptians 1,500 years before Christ and even today many people who think they may have cancer are afraid to face the facts of medical diagnosis. But many cancers, if discovered and treated early, may be cured. Don't let fear put you off. Early action may save your life.

Supply Jews In Armed Forces With Religious Needs

In the five years since Japan's surrender on August 14, 1945, and the close of hostilities in the Far East, the National Jewish Welfare Board (JWB) has distributed to Jews in the American armed forces throughout the world and to hospitalized Jewish veterans in the U. S., 314,000 pounds of kosher foodstuffs, 97,890 Bibles and prayer books, 138,211 different religious articles and over 1,250,000 holiday greeting cards, leaflets, calendars and pamphlets on Jewish history.

These figures were made public by Milton Weill, New York, chairman of JWB's Armed Services Division, and Rabbi Solomon B. Freehof, of Pittsburgh, Pa., chairman of JWB's Division of Religious Activities, in reporting on plans for world-wide arrangements for bringing High Holy Day services to Jewish servicemen and hospitalized veterans in the remotest installations of North America, Europe, Asia and the Caribbean area.

JWB is the government-recognized agency for meeting the religious, morale and welfare needs of Jewish personnel in the armed forces and in Veterans Administration Hospitals, a responsibility it has carried since 1917, in war and in peace. Together with the YMCA and the National Catholic Community Service, it is a member of the Associated Services for the Armed Forces (ASAF).

In the six months ending July 1, 1950, JWB shipped to Jewish armed forces personnel in the Far East alone, including Korea, 6,282 pounds of kosher foods, 9,897 Bibles and prayer books, 3,179 religious articles and 8,251 pieces of printed matter. Three of the eight full-time Jewish chaplains on duty with the American occupation forces overseas are in the Far East and they have the responsibility for utilizing these supplies in carrying out their religious and welfare programs. The 17 Jewish chaplains on full-time duty in the United States as well as the 180 part-time chaplains, served and ecclesiastically endorsed by JWB, are also provided with a regular supply of such materials by JWB.

In addition to food supplies and prayer books, JWB makes available shofars, prayer shawls, candelabra, skull caps, altar cloths, kiddush cups, and mezuzahs for use in Jewish religious services by Jewish chaplains at some 500 installations and hospitals in America and in Japan, Okinawa, Guam, Hawaii, the Philippines, Germany, Austria and the West Indies.

Field workers in the United States, working in liaison with the chaplains, and with some 25,000 volunteers organized in 231 local JWB Armed Services Committees, are now planning community and on-the-post religious services Rosh Hashanah eve, September 11, and on both days of the Jewish New Year, September 12 and 13. Besides religious services, JWB is organizing home hospitality while the Women's Division, through its Serve-a-Camp and Serve-a-Hospital groups are packing holiday gift packages for distribution in hospitals and military posts. Recordings of the holiday services, made available by the Women's Division, will be sent to VA hospitals for playing at bedside services.

In the field of industrial health, periodic health examinations for every employee from top executive to office boy are a necessity.

THE MAN WHO OUTBLUFFED THE NAZIS IN A RANSOM DEAL

on a bridge over the Bodensee River, joining the Swiss town of St. Margareten with Austria. During the course of the negotiations, Mr. Mayer demanded that Brecher demonstrate that he had actual power. Stating that he had information that the Nazis were about to send a trainload of 1,700 Jews to Bergen-Belsen concentration camp, he demanded that the Jews be brought to Switzerland instead. The Nazis complied, and Mayer secured permission from the Swiss government for their entry.

The Nazis, in turn, demanded that Mayer give proof of his ability to provide ransom. At his request, and with State Department approval, the JDC provided $5,000,000 to his account within twenty-four hours. The Nazis were impressed, but they did not know that the funds were, in reality, blocked and could not have been spent by Mayer. At one point Mayer learned that the Nazis, grown restless over the long delay, had readied 66 trains in Budapest to begin transporting the Jews there to Auschwitz. Mayer called Brecher and threatened that either the deportation order be cancelled or negotiations would be broken off. The deportation order was cancelled. When the war ended, the 200,000 Jews of Hungary were still alive, thanks to Mayer's efforts and to the efforts of another heroic businessman Raoul Wallenberg, a Swedish non-Jew who, working inside Budapest, fed the Jews, using funds provided by the JDC through the War Refugee Board.

Mayer assumed formal charge of JDC activities in Switzerland in 1940. He was then a retired businessman who had conducted a successful lace factory in St. Gall. But as president of the Israelitscher Gemeindebund, Jewish community organization, he had become increasingly concerned over the plight of Jewish refugees pouring into Switzerland fleeing Nazi terror in Germany. By 1943, the refugees in Switzerland had swelled from 6,000 to 25,000. An Orthodox Jew, and deeply religious, Mayer looked upon his work of attending to their needs as part of his religious duty. He refused all offers of salary from the JDC. Transforming his former factory in St. Gall into refugee headquarters, he made his bed on an old couch in his office, and frequently worked around the clock.

As JDC, which had maintained offices in most European countries, was forced out of them by the Nazi advances, Mayer became the focal point of more and more of JDC activities on the continent. He supplied funds to Jewish and non-Jewish underground groups to keep alive Jews in hiding in their countries. He helped arrange escapes for many Jews into Switzerland from Nazi-held territory. He slept with his principal papers beside his couch, for he never knew but that the Nazis might invade Switzerland and he might be forced to flee.

Much of Mayer's work was done in collaboration with JDC's wartime European headquarters, located in Lisbon, and under the direction of Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz. He would telephone Dr. Schwartz frequently, holding long conversations about the latest American novels to throw off eavesdroppers, and interspersing his remarks with vital information concerning refugees. Mayer, who spent many millions of dollars for JDC both during the war, and in the postwar period, referred to himself as "Keeper of O.P.M. (Other People's Money)". A favorite admonition of his to his staff was "When you spend one dollar of O.P.M., you have an obligation to get one dollar and five cents value in return."

In January, 1950, Mayer finally resigned from his active duties with JDC, remaining as a consultant. The Swiss Jewish leader is survived in St. Gall by a wife and a son. A brother, Fred, resides in the United States.

Tells Of Hospitals Run By Hadassah

One of the eight hospitals maintained in Israel by Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, Inc., opened within the last year at Beersheba in the Negeb Desert, Mrs. Samuel J. Rosensohn said in New York at the organization's headquarters, 1819 Broadway. Chairman of the Hadassah Medical Organization, Mrs. Rosensohn returned recently from five weeks in Israel, says the New York Herald Tribune.

Mrs. Rosensohn administers at long distance a vast health program, budgeted this year at $3,000,000. She is the sister of Albert Lasker, who has made notable contributions to the cause of public health and medical progress. Two years ago, she said, when Hadassah opened a health center in Beersheba, after every foot of the Negeb Desert had been fought over, there were only twenty civilians living in the town.

Hadassah renovated an old fifty-bed hospital that the British had left and named it after the late Dr. Haim Yassky. Dr. Yassky was director of the large hospital on Mt. Scopus near Jerusalem, which Hadassah had built for the Hebrew University Medical School and had completed just before it was burned out by Arab fire. He was killed with seventy-six other mmbers of the staff as they were returning to the hospital in a convoy in April, 1948.

The Haim Yassky Hospital at Beersheba with its health center today has a staff of forty-five and serves a town now grown to 5,000, as well as the entire northern Negeb. The Bedouins, nomadic Arabs, now come for treatment, along with the Israelis, having overcome the fear of medical treatment. They are attracted to the hospital, Mrs. Rosensohn said, because it is surrounded by beautiful gardens. The doctors and nurses live in old Arab buildings, modernized and painted bright colors.

Since it was founded in 1912 by the late Henrietta Szold, Hadassah has pioneered in the health and welfare field with emphasis on preventive medicine and teaching.

People ask why Israelis look so healthy, Mrs. Rosensohn commented. The sun must be given some credit, she admitted, but credit must go, too, to the sixty-three welfare stations for mothers and children which Hadassah maintains over the country. Patients make 25,000 visits a month to these stations, and here mothers, in groups, are educated in the basic concepts of child psychology. In Jerusalem Hadassah operates a mental hygiene clinic, the first in the country, designed chiefly for children.

The immigrants who came to Israel from the concentration camps of Europe have shown a high incidence of psychoneurosis, Dr. Eli Davis, director of the Hadassah Medical Organization, in the U. S., on a visit, reported. Conversely, the Oriental Jews now coming from Yemen, Iraq and North Africa, of a more primitive cultural level, suffer hardly at all from neuroses. Some of them are psychotic, he said, but in no higher a proportion than in any European country.

The Oriental immigrants, who will number at least 150,000 this year, suffer from diseases, from malnutrition and tuberculosis, of which the country was formerly almost free.

In the transient refugee camp at Roshhayan, Hadassah opened a children's hospital a year ago. At that time, Dr. Davis said, the immigrants' children "were dying like flies." Now the mortality is negligible and the staff is convinced that 95 per cent of the children will become healthy adults.

The organization's fine Jerusalem's hospitals, housed in old buildings, serve as the university's teaching center and are provided with modern equipment.

Montreal Deaths

Louis Slover, aged forty-three, died in Toronto, Ont., on August 29. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Ray Slover, of Toronto; four brothers, David and Charles, of Ottawa, Ont.; Samuel and Henry, of Montreal; and one sister, Mrs. O. Galler (Sarah), of Montreal. Funeral service took place from Paperman's, Rabbi M. Master officiating. Burial was in Hebrew Sick Benefit Association cemetery. Shiva was at the home of his sister, Mrs. O. Galler, 5876 Park Avenue.

Mrs. Sophie Goodman Caiserman, 184 Bernard Avenue West, died in her sixtieth year, on August 24, at the Jewish General Hospital. She is survived by her husband, Jack Caiserman; two daughters, Mrs. S. Tobenstein (May); Miss Greta Caiserman; a son, Lionel; four grandchildren, Martha, Thelma, and Mark Tobenstein, Murray Jay Caiserman; her father, Eli Goodman; four sisters, Mrs. S. Label (Myra); Mrs. B. Bush (Edith); Mrs. L. Katz (Jane); Mrs. M. Ruttenberg (Rose); and two brothers, Samuel and Joseph Goodman. Funeral service took place from Paperman's. Burial was in Independent Hebrew Sick Benefit Association cemetery. Shiva was at the home.

A new Orthodox Jewish synagogue, Congregation Beth Moshe, is on Central Park West, in New York. It has just been formed and a five-year lease has been taken on the second floor of the building at 409 Central Park West, between 100th and 101st Street. The interior of the synagogue is now being completed. The synagogue will also have a kindergarten and Hebrew school. Rabbi Judah Glasner, rabbi of the new congregation, is a descendant of a long line of rabbinical scholars and was educated at the Rabbinical Seminary in Bratislava, Czechoslovakia. He came to the United States in 1948.

Rabbi Phineas Kadushin, son of Rabbi Max Kadushin, former Hillel director at the University of Wisconsin, has been named director of the Hillel Foundation at Ohio University, Rabbi Arthur J. Lelyveld, national director of the Bnai Brith Hillel Foundations, announced.

FREEDOM IS A CHILD'S WORD, TOO

Freedom is a child's word too . . . freedom to explore, freedom to express himself naturally—more freedom than is possible within the average apartment.

The need for new toys, new games, new experiences, and above all, the need to share them with other children, are important problems to the thoughtful parent. Most important, your child's needs cannot wait. The habits and traits he is now forming are the foundations of all he will ever know, everything he will ever accomplish.

Many parents have found The Lad & Lassie Kindergarten, 1357 Van Horne Ave., Outremont, to be the ideal answer to these problems. Here are provided full facilities for play, trained teachers and approved materials to satisfy your child's growing curiosity, and contact with other children to teach cooperation and provide pleasant companionship.

For further information about the Lad & Lassie Kindergarten, situated at 1357 Van Horne Ave., Outremont, phone CA. 7040 or CA. 2826. Morning classes: 9 a.m.—12 noon; afternoon classes: 2 p.m.—4.30 p.m. Write for prospectus.

To Keep Doors Open, Says Israeli Envoy

Israel is committed to continued immigration despite the strain it will put on the country's economy, Aubrey S. Eban, Israeli Ambassador-designate to the United States, said in New York.

The thinking of the Israeli government is driven by a "compelling force of immigration," and immigration will continue regardless of the economic comfort of the present population, he said. If this means the economic collapse of Israel, then Israel "will go down," he said.

Speaking before 375 campaign workers at a special luncheon of the United Jewish Appeal at the Astor, Mr. Eban stressed the urgency of the problem and said the flow of immigrants is on the increase. The special meeting was called to inaugurate a drive to collect $10,000,000 in outstanding pledges. At the end of the meeting it was announced that $500,000 of these pledges had been collected in a few days, and $600,000 was collected in cash at the luncheon.

Edward M. M. Warburg, general chairman of the New York U. J. A. campaign, who presided at the luncheon, announced that to date almost $31,000,000 had been collected in the campaign in New York. The national goal is $272,455,800. New York hopes to exceed its last year's total of $40,000,000.

Mr. Eban said he only recently returned from a series of top-level meetings in Israel on the new nation's political and economic future. He said the country's position in the world was reconsidered in the light of "accumulating dangers in the world and our geographical position."

He said the country was "besieged politically and economically" and that the siege can be broken only if the "slender lifeline through the Mediterranean to the rest of the Jewish world continued." He said that because of internal and external pressures the program of constructing a republic is going ahead "at breakneck speed."

"Lemiel and Shlemiel," a new puppet theatre, is soon to make its debut on the national stage of Israel. Formed by a small group of soldiers from Czechoslovakia, Hungary, and Poland, the enterprise has been encouraged by experts and theatre fans. Dr. Paul Levy, of Tel Aviv, one of the country's few authorities on puppetry, lent them his valuable marionettes. A newcomer from Germany who still lives in the Kiryath Shmuel Immigrant Camp is carving character heads for them. Avraham Grossmann, by occupation a barber and by vocation a puppeteer, is the leader of the group. The equipment will be mechanized and mobile. Their program will include biblical plays, historical dramas, musical revues and political satire.

MALEMUD-SHERMAN

The marriage of Fay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Sherman, 158 Major Street, to Fred Malemud, son of Mrs. A. Malemud, Cecil Street, took place on August 6, at four o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, with Rabbi David Monson officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a powder-blue crepe ankle-length gown, having a lace top, high round neckline, three-quarter-length sleeves, fitted bodice, and draped skirt. Her white hat had a matching lace veil, and she carried a white Bible adorned an orchid and streamers of roses. Miss Min Koblinsky was maid of honor. She was in a royal-blue print dinner gown, fashioned with off-the-shoulder neckline, short sleeves, and draped skirt, with roses in her hair, and carried a matching nosegay. Reuben Malemud was best man. The bride's mother wore a steel grey crepe gown, having a high V-neckline, trimmed with rhinestones, three-quarter-length sleeves, and draped skirt, with corsage of red roses. The groom's mother wore a navy-blue sheer print dress, fashioned with a V-neckline, short sleeves, and pleated skirt, with corsage of red roses. For the trip to New York, and Atlantic City, N.J., the bride travelled in a navy-blue redingote over white pique, with white accessories, and corsage of white orchids. The couple are residing in Toronto.

POTTINS-GOLDENTHAL

The marriage of Zelda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goldenthal, 144 Major Street, to Maurice, son of Mrs. Anne Pottins, 638 Bathurst Street, and the late Joseph Pottins, took place at Tifereth Israel Congregation Synagogue, on August 20, at half-past five o'clock. Rabbi David Monson officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was gowned in ivory satin which was fashioned with high neckline, trimmed with rosettes and pearl beads, long sleeves, fitted bodice, and full skirt finishing in a long train. Her full-length tulle illusion embroidered veil was caught to a crown of pearl beads and she carried a white Bible adorned with streamers of Sweetheart roses. Mrs. L. Salsberg, sister of the bride, was matron of honour. In an off-the-shoulder gown of turquoise-blue taffeta, with full skirt, she had a garland of blue-tinted flowers in her hair, and carried a nosegay of Sweetheart roses. Al. Zigelstein was best man. At the garden supper at home, Mrs. Goldenthal received, wearing a royal-blue crepe dress, with high neckline, short sleeves, and slim skirt designed with peplum trimmed with lace, and corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Anne Pottins wore a black lace dress, over blue satin, with low neckline, short sleeves, and straight skirt, with corsage of red roses. For the motor trip to Montreal, Que., the bride travelled in a brown gabardine softly tailored suit, with grey accessories, and corsage of Sweetheart roses. The couple are residing at 144 Major Street. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kornwise and daughter, Rosalyn, of Detroit, Mich.; and Mr. and Mrs. Al. Pottins, of Peterborough, were wedding guests.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Smith, 18 Highview Crescent, announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Florence Tobie, to Jack Pozen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pozen, 7 Kendal Avenue, the marriage to take place on October 15, at Machzikei Bnai Israel Synagogue.

ton Avenue West spent the season in Muskoka.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Shadlyn, Robert Street, have returned home after speding several days in New York.

Manuel Jacobs, of Detroit, Mich., visited Mr. and Mrs. I. Goldman, 557 Bayview Avenue, for several days.

Leonard Katz, of Buffalo, N.Y., spent several days visiting with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. M. Brown, Roseneath Gardens.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Kates and son, David Edward, formerly of 240 Johnson Avenue, Lansing, have taken up residence in their new home at 225 Bogert Avenue, Lansing.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Kornwise and daughter, Rosalyn, of Detroit, Mich.; and Mr. and Mrs. A. Pottins, of Peterborogh, were here for the marriage of Miss Zelda Goldenthal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goldenthal, 144 Major Street, to Morris Pottins, son of Mrs. Anne Pottins, 638 Bathurst Street, and the late Joseph Pottins.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Shessel, Cranbrooke Avenue, celebrated the second birthday of their son, Stephen Lorne, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. P. Shadlyn, Robert Street; and of Mrs. R. Shessel, Palmerston Avenue.

Mrs. J. Breslove, Brunswick Avenue, was hostess at a miscellaneous shower, at Apter Centre, in honour of Miss Helen Unroth, daughter of Mrs. J. Unroth, Bellevue Avenue, prior to her marriage to Joseph Breslove, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Breslove, Brunswick Avenue. The honouree wore navy-blue crepe trimmed with white pique, having an off-the-shoulder neckline, cap sleeves, and skirt designed with back drapery, and a mauve orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. David Ceifets, 208 Grace Street, celebrated the bar-mitzvah of their son, Bernard Ralph, brother of Nita; grandson of Mrs. A. Pearl, 208 Grace Street, who was called to the Reading of the Law, at Shaw Street Synagogue. At a luncheon in the synagogue, there were about one hundred and twenty-five guests. Bernard Ralph, the bar-mitzvah, made a speech in English, and the master of ceremonies was Jack Borovoy, 315 Grace Street. A reception was held in the evening at home. Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Pearl and son, Conrad Barry; Mrs. David Ceifetz, Louis Ceifetz, all of Detroit, Mich.; and Mrs. M. Hershoran and son, Paul, of Owen Sound. The cake was in the shape of an open Bible.

Mrs. W. Rotman, 92b Major Street, and Mrs. W. Hoft, 165 Delaware Avenue, were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower to honour Miss Nettie Rotman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Rotman, 327 Queen Street East, whose marriage to Manny Gold, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gold, 63 Borden Street, takes place on November 5, at Hebrew Men of England Synagogue. There were sixty guests. Mrs. P. Rotman, mother of the bride-elect, wore a blue print crepe dress, having a round neckline, short sleeves, and flared skirt, with corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. J. Gold, aunt of the groom-elect, wore a black sheer dress, made with V-neckline, white pique trimming, short sleeves, and flared skirt, with corsage of pink roses. The honouree wore peach-coloured silk jersey, in white checks, and made with a shawl collar, short sleeves, and straight skirt, with corsage of pink roses. White lighted tapers decorated the table.

Mrs. David Rosenberg, Miss Jeanine Rosenberg, 197 Pendrith Street, and Mrs. Alec Rose, 347 Shaw Street, were hostesses at a kitchen shower at the formers' home, in honour of Miss Marta Jelinik, daughter of Mrs. I. Jelinik, Russell Hill Road, whose marriage to Ernest Fleisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Fleisher, 572 Crawford Street, takes place on Sunday, October 8, at Keltzer Synagogue. There were twenty-four guests. Mrs. Rosenberg wore a black gabardine softly tailored suit, trimmed with matching beading. Miss Rosenberg wore a bronze-coloured taffeta dress, with brown velvet polka-dots, Queen Anne collar, cap sleeves, velvet cumerbund, and flared skirt. Mrs. Rose was in a gabardine suit, having a white and navy checked jacket, with dolman sleeves, and navy slim skirt. The honouree wore beige iridescent taffeta, designed with roll collar, three-quarter-length sleeves, and flared skirt. Mrs. I. Jelinik wore a black crepe dress, with V-neckline, short sleeves, and straight skirt. Pink lighted tapers set in green tiered candlesticks were on the table.

New Year Greetings From The People Of Israel

BY AVRAHAM HARMAN, CONSUL GENERAL OF ISRAEL, AND ARIE BEN-TOVIM, CONSUL OF ISRAEL; IN CANADA

We are glad of this opportunity of extending the greetings of the people of Israel to the Jewish Community of Canada on the occasion of Rosh-Hashona. May the New Year bring peace and harmony to a troubled world; may it bring unbroken progress to your great country; may it see the Jewish communities throughout the world living in contentment, and may it see in Israel the undisturbed continuation of our work to provide a home to those of our people in need of it.

We have spent a year in Canada and have had numerous opportunities during that time of experiencing at first hand the warm sympathy and generous support which the State of Israel inspires in the hearts of the Jewish community in Canada. We are sincerely grateful for the hospitality which has been extended to us and for the encouragement we have received on all sides.

In Israel itself, the prospects for the New Year do not indicate that there will be any relaxation in the extraordinary degree of tense effort which the people there have been sustaining for so long. The influx of immigation must continue, particularly now that the international horizon is overclouded. The economic strain resulting from the mass immigration of people without capital of their own, and, in most cases, unequipped and unqualified to enter gainful production without long and expensive training, is growing more acute as each month brings its further quota of immigrants. The people in Israel themselves have carried this burden during the past year by restricting their consumption, by increasing taxation and by speeding up production. These measures will have to be continued during the coming year with even greater rigour.

Decisions have already been taken to restrict consumption still further and to mobilise the resources of the nation to fight the battle of production in order to make goods and services available for the newcomers and to provide through exports the currency we require to pay for needed imports. Motivating this policy, and hardship is not to be minimised, lies the conviction that in order to avoid grave risks and in order not to incur grave responsibilities for the loss of Jewish life, our immigration policy must, in view of the international dangers, be conducted in the spirit of "now or never".

It is this spirit of urgency which has led the Government and people of Israel to continue a policy which is bringing an average of 15,000 immigrants into Israel each month, and which constrains us to draw the attention of the Jewish people to the full extent of the responsibility resting on us at this time.

The past year has witnessed a remarkable transformation in Israel. Some 180,000 Jews have entered the country. Scores of new settlements and factories have been established. The seat of Government has been permanently set up in Jerusalem. Tens of thousands of newcomers have been introduced into the cycle of production. A law of compulsory education has been introduced, guaranteeing that the interests of the rising generation in Israel will receive the attention they deserve. Health services have been improved, not only in Israel, but in the staging camps from which the immigrants in various countries are brought to

A New Year's Message

BY SAMUEL BRONFMAN, OF MONTREAL, PRESIDENT OF THE CANADIAN JEWISH CONGRESS

Until but a short while ago Canadian Jewry, when it contemplated the advent of the New Year, looked forward to a period of time in which the hectic history of recent years, with its alarums and clarion-calls, would give way to an era of calm, steady, constructive endeavour. Proud of its participation in the heroic and epic enterprise of the last decade — its dedication to King and country, its defense of democracy, its contribution to the establishment of the State of Israel, its manifold works of rescue and rehabilitation — Canadian Jewry hoped at long last now to devote itself to those positive day-to-day efforts which, though unsensational in themselves, go to make up the totality of progress.

It is in this spirit that Canadian Jewry has accentuated its program of local communal development and has set its sights towards the perfecting of an entity which would be to our country at once a source of strength and of pride adding to its cultural wealth and affirming again the principle of unity in variety. It is in this spirit, too, that Canadian Jewry, considering its humanitarian obligations to those whom it had rescued from the gehenna of Europe, saw before it, not the accustomed challenge of emergency need, but the even greater challenge of slow, planned consolidation.

Canadian Jewry, in the very midst of the solemnity of the approaching High Holidays, prays and hopes that this its view of things to come will remain unaltered, that the era which lies before us will be one of building, and not of destruction, of harmony and not of conflict. At the same time it cannot but be aware that there are in the world to-day forces which threaten all that we have so painfully and at such great sacrifice won, undisguised menace to our way of life, elements which would provoke again, when the world is but scarcely recovered, a conflagration that would delay, if not altogether thwart, all our aspirations and plans for progress. Canadian Jewry is at one with its Government in that Government's view of the situation and in the steps which it is taking in the cause of world justice and national integrity.

As it moves to greet the New Year Canadian Jewry, standing before great opportunities for constructive achievement, earnestly prays for peace, beseeching Providence that the menace which now threatens may vanish in harmony and understanding. It prays also for the continuation of its ancestral gift, heritage of the prophets: to know to proclaim the right and at all costs to maintain it.

New Year Message

BY J. B. SALSBERG, OF TORONTO, MEMBER OF PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT, ST. ANDREW

To the traditional greetings for a Happy New Year one must this year add the solemn hope that it shall be a year of peace and one in which the foundations will be laid for lasting peace for all mankind. The longing for peace is nowhere more deeply rooted than it is among the Jewish people. Shalom! has been our form of salutation from the very infancy of our existence as a people. Our tragic experiences throughout the centuries compelled us to seek peace. This age-long quest was never more urgent than it is on the eve of this new year.

All the peoples of the world desire peace but for us it is a question of life or death as a people. Even with the thre[illegible] of atomic warfare, there is [illegible]er people in the world tha[illegible] menaced by total destr[illegible] the event of another [illegible] as are the Jews. Du[illegible] war we lost [illegible] people. Those [illegible] face the danger [illegible] annihilation in the [illegible]other world catastrophe. [illegible] erpetrators of another war [illegible] our worst enemies. The ad[illegible]tes and fighters for peace are [illegible] natural allies.

For us the battle to save the peace is the highest imperative. There is not and cannot be a greater task than that of joining with the peace forces of all other peoples and nations to prevent the spreading of the present Korean conflict into a world war. We must join with all peace-loving Canadians to save our country from the horrors of war, and to save our people, here and everywhere in the world, including Israel, from the stark danger of annihilation.

May the year 5711 be one of [illegible] and happiness for all of us.

Israel, and, as a result, the physical condition of the immigrants, and particularly of their children, has been raised.

The defence forces of the State have been reorganised and strengthened and the country is ready to meet any contingency. The new investment law has encouraged the entry into Israel of private capital from abroad and has led to the promotion of new enterprises giving employment to large numbers. With the growth in production, exports have begun to increase and are responsible for a gradually increasing percentage of Israel's requirements of foreign capital.

The tourist industry, which is valuable not only as a source of income, but as a means of acquainting the world with Israel's struggle to serve as a centre of rehabilitation for those of the Jewish people who seek a homeland there, has developed satisfactorily and the facilities which the country can provide to the tourist have improved. In the sphere of communications there have been remarkable developments: railway traffic inside the country has been resumed; new roads now penetrate into the undeveloped parts of the land and Israel's own air-line and merchant marine link the country with the great world outside. In all these spheres, progress has been substantial but very much still remains to be done before our resources are exploited to their full.

As the years go by, Israel is ceasing to be a novelty. The Jewish State has become a permanent part of the international scene, performing its obligations as a member of the United Nations and playing fully its humble part in the world concert of nations. But its major function in Jewish life is far from having been completed; it will never be completed while there remains a single Jew anywhere who is driven out by persecution or the fear of persecution to seek a home and a refuge.

To the performance of this, its historic role in Jewish history, Israel re-dedicates itself on the threshold of the New Year, under no illusions as to the difficulty involved, but with the impelling conviction that that goal must be reached whatever the hardships entailed. In charting this course, the people of Israel are encouraged and fortified by the knowledge that the World Zionist Organization and the Jewish communities throughout the world approve this policy and will offer it their continued backing and support.

The Hebrew University Helps Israel To Develop

BY ALLAN BRONFMAN, OF MONTREAL, PRESIDENT OF THE CANADIAN FRIENDS OF THE HEBREW UNIVERSITY

This past year has mellowed me and Mrs. Bronfman to the realities of a New Year. Now we know the intensity of parents' loss. Now our knowledge is of the heart, not merely of the sympathetic mind. Jewish parents have lost much during two decades. But we Jews have proceeded to tighten our global belts. With the help of civilized mankind, we have established a state. We have begun to rescue our children and we have started to give them the right to culture and education and attainments of their own, including parenthood and democracy.

The New Year sees promise for Israel's people, a people who, whilst saving their homeless, have given no respite to democratic living. The Hebrew University of Jerusalem is an outstanding example of working democracy. There is no aspect of Jewish life in Israel with which this people's institution fails to concern itself. Doctors and scientists, educators and scholars in every field, orphaned from their studies in Europe, are being trained, together with native Israelis, to be freedom-loving leaders and workers for the Jewish State.

Israel and her people and her institutions must this year, as before, be given ever-increasing attention and devotion. Let us hope that world peace and prosperity may permit our fullest assistance to long-suffering Jewry and that Israel may continue to develop as the land of promise.

ZIONIST PRESIDENTS URGE SUPPORT TO ISRAEL

The following is an excerpt from the Rosh Hashonah message issued by Edward E. Gelber, of Toronto, and Samuel E. Schwisberg, K.C., of Montreal, co-presidents of the Zionist Organization of Canada:

Since the establishment of the State of Israel, 430,000 Jews from all corners of the world have entered the country. Thousands of new immigrants seeking not only an escape from persecution and degradation, but also happiness, reach the homeland every month. The Jews of Israel have readily accepted heavy burdens. They bore the brunt of the war for independence. They lead a life of extreme austerity and economic hardship in order that the gates of Israel be kept open and that the immigrants be absorbed as quickly as possible as useful, productive citizens.

The economy of Israel is strained to the utmost and without the full partnership of Jewry everywhere the miracles achieved since May 1948 are in danger. Our deep concern for the fate and future of the State of Israel should be matched by an enhanced sense of this partnership and of our responsibilities to the new State so that it may have the opportunity for free growth and harmonious development.

May the New Year be one of peace based upon justice in a free world of free men. May the oncoming year be one of dedication to the State of Israel.
